Isolated by her position, the pathetic yearning of Thaw's young wife for sympathetic companionship is expressed in her interview with Dorothy Dix. For more than a year she has lived in the shadow of a great tragedy. Even in the crowded court room she is apart and alone.—SEE PAGE 6.

THAW JURY AGAIN FILLED

For Fifth Time Since Trial Opened Panel Is Completed, but Five of Men Chosen Are Only "Provisional" Jurors and May Be Excluded.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—For the fifth time since the second trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White began on Monday, the box has been filled with sworn and prospective jurors. This was accomplished just before the adjournment of the forenoon session to-day.

This fact gave hope that the jury would be completed to-day, and it served to cheer Thaw, who had been very gloomy since his entrance this morning because of the news that his mother is dangerously ill at her home in Pittsburg.

Never before in a criminal trial has such an effort been made to accelerate the selection of a jury. Judge Victor J. Dowling has imposed the heaviest fines ever known here upon talesmen who failed to respond to their names when called for interrogation as to their qualifications to sit in the jury box.

NEARLY $30.000 IN FINES.

With the fining of twenty-five delinquents to-day $250 each for non-appearance, the sum of all the fines aggregated nearly $30,000. If this were to keep up much longer, the county would have money enough to pay the expenses of the trial.

When the adjournment was taken after the forenoon session the seven men in the box consisted of seven sworn jurymen and five tentative ones. It was expected that some of the five would be weeded out when court convened for the afternoon session.

Crossing the ocean on their way to this city are three important witnesses who will be called by the defence to show that while Thaw and Evelyn were touring Europe the year before the tragedy he was a veritable madman and was feared generally as such.

These are new witnesses, found after a careful search along the zigzag path of the young millionaire's travels in the Old World. The facts that they will be able to lay before the jury, it is said, will be of the most striking character. Two of the trio are English witnesses and the other French.

TO GET JURY THIS WEEK.

When court convened to-day there were seven sworn jurymen in the box. There was a determination upon the part of counsel for both sides to complete the jury to-day so as to avoid sitting to-morrow. Judge Dowling told the lawyers plainly that he proposed to finish the jury this week, even if court had to sit Saturday. Neither Jerome nor Littleton wants to spend to-morrow in court.

Josiah Thaw and Evelyn Thaw took their seats in the family pew, as Harry K. Thaw came through the railed enclosure to the counsel table.

Thaw carried his tin box for his letters and papers, as well as his overcoat which hung over his arm. He sank into his seat beside his personal counsel, A. Russell Peabody, without a glance at the chairs where his wife and half-brother were seated.

The young man had heard of the serious illness of his mother, and it weighed heavily upon him. Evelyn kept her wistful eyes in his direction, ready to give him a reassuring smile if the chance were offered. But Thaw was too deeply buried in his sorrow to look around.

In order to hurry the trial when the taking of evidence begins, the Court has decided to hold sessions from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., with the hour from one to two for recess.

Attorney Littleton reported to-day that the Edna Goodrich incident is now closed. A detective from Daniel O'Reilly's office called on her by appointment last night at the theatre where she is playing and she accepted service of a subpoena for appearance as a witness for the defence when wanted." She explained that she did not consider the service of the night previous as legal.

PROFESSES IGNORANCE.

Miss Goodrich insists that she knows absolutely nothing about the case and that she does not remember ever having introduced Stanford White to Evelyn Nesbit.

The aged mother of the spendthrift millionaire boy, the venerable figure that lent dignity and respectability to the last trial, Mrs. William Thaw, is critically ill at her home in Pittsburg. Seventy years of age and threatened with pneumonia, the gray-haired woman, who loves her wayward son with the tender affection of one who knows his frailties, may never leave her bed again.

It is declared by her intimate friends that in any case she will not be able to attend the trial.

The shock that came to this respected woman, known for her charity and Christian spirit, when her son was locked up for murder; the horror of the revelations of the first trial; the dangling before the world of the skeleton of her own closet—these heart-crushing burdens, augmented by the marital troubles of her daughter, the Countess of Yarmouth, have proven too heavy a burden for any woman to bear.

There was a special panel of 100 talesmen in court to-day, the fifth since the trial began Monday, but whether the five qualified jurors needed can be secured from their number is doubtful. Out of the four panels so far examined but seven men have qualified to the satisfaction of both sides, and the proceedings to-day began with these seven sworn and in the box.

Of a total of thirty peremptory challenges allowed each side by law the defence has been compelled to use twenty while the State has exhausted four-

BARTLETT DEMOCRATS MEET TO REORGANIZE

KILEY ON HAND TO TAKE HELM AT MEETING OF STATE COMMITTEEMEN.

The Bartlett wing of the Democratic State Committee met this afternoon for the purpose of reorganization at the old Democratic headquarters at No. 85 State street.

The meeting was attended with a great deal of excitement because of the meeting of the Whitney faction of the committee yesterday afternoon at the Quincy House, under the leadership of William S. McNary, where an organization, according to the way Mr. McNary looks at it, was effected.

The Bartlett men, led by John P. Feeney and Daniel J. Kiley, declare that the meeting yesterday was a farce and that the only real bona fide Democratic State Committee is the one that gathered to-day in State street.

Kiley Early at Helm.

Mr. Kiley was on hand promptly at noon. He sat at his desk ready to take hold of the situation, when it presented itself, with his well known ability to manage things of that character.

It was early whispered that an attempt would be made by the district members to throw out the members-at-large who were selected at the convention.

Following are the Bartlett members at large:

George Fred Williams, Dedham; John P. Feeney, Woburn; John P. Sweeney, Lawrence; Patrick J. Mitchell, Springfield; H. B. Lyons, Fitchburg; Daniel J. Kiley, Boston; John O'Hearn, Taunton; John A. Coulthurst, Boston; W. H. Creamer, Lynn; T. J. Crowley, North Adams; John O'Neil, New Bedford (dead); Frank J. Linehan, Boston; Humphrey O'Sullivan, Lowell; J. H. McInerney, Boston; D. T. O'Connell, Boston; J. J. Mahoney, Boston, and Col. A. C. Drinkwater, Braintree.

O'Brien Favored.

Among the early arrivals in State street the talk was favorable to the election of Edward H. O'Brien of Worcester as chairman of the committee. Mr. O'Brien tried yesterday to introduce a harmony resolution at the Whitney meeting of members, but the chairman refused to entertain the motion, whereat Mr. O'Brien and two others walked out of the meeting.

Many of the members who were at the Whitney meeting yesterday remained all night in the city and were at to-day's meeting. They declared that nothing happened yesterday that bound them in any way to anything or that would prevent them from participating in the meeting to-day.

Among those men who do not know exactly where they are at were Millen of Peabody and Coffey of Lynn.

It was said that James W. Synan, who was elected chairman at the Whitney meeting, would probably be in attendance this afternoon. He stayed over night at the Adams House.

In the headquarters and in the corridors of the building were numerous little knots of members of the committee, who earnestly discussed the peculiar situation. The general trend of the talk was to the effect that yesterday's meeting, put through by Mr. McNary, would be entirely disregarded, as being unlawful because of lack of attendance among other things.

ASTHMA CONQUERED.

Directors of Big Laboratory Make New Departure.

The phenomenal success which ascatco, the now famous drug, has accomplished in curing asthma, bronchitis and catarrh since it was brought to this country, has resulted in the decision by the directors of the Austrian Laboratory, at No. 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City, to place ascatco on sale for fifty cents at all the leading drug stores in Boston, including Houghton & Dutton's. The full month's treatment of ascatco may be obtained at the regular price of $2 at the stores also.

It is universally admitted that ascatco is the only positive and permanent cure for asthma known in this country to-day and no other remedy has so large a number of cures to its credit.—Adv.

28 FINED IN CRUSADE FOR CLEAN WALKS

Twenty-eight men were fined in Boston courts to-day as a result of Police Commissioner O'Meara's crusade for clean sidewalks. The commissioner is co-operating with the Board of Health to enforce the ordinance against expectoration on sidewalks, station platforms and similar places.

Judge Fallon, in South Boston District Court, fined Thomas J. Coady of D street and William Connors of No. 11 Vicksburg street $5 each.

Judge Chester A. Barnard, in Brighton District Court, fined Samuel J. McPhail of No. 63 Coolidge road, Brighton, $5, and Alphonsus O'Brien of No. 645 Cambridge street, Brighton, $5. O'Brien appealed.

William Boyce, Frederick Paloupo, Oscar LeClelra, Paul D. Harry, Edward Collins and Hugh Burns were fined $2 apiece by Judge Bragg in Charlestown District Court. The court remarked that the next fines would be heavier.

John Beulsh of No. 1 Gordon street, Ernest F. Meadows of No. 951 Albany street, South End, and William F. Keen of No. 1,316 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, were fined $3 apiece by Judge Churchill in the Dorchester District Court.

In the Municipal Court Judge Michael J. Murray fined these twenty-five men $5 each: George W. Ellis, Charles A. Sport, William C. West, Robert Duttall, Benjamin S. Ward, Joseph Tumpoulli, Patrick H. Dulate, Edward Ellis, Edward J. Mahoney, James H. Lachus, Patrick Langdon, Arthur E. Chase, Robert M. Morrison, David Claire, Joseph Parotti, Frank W. Webber, Narrlete Cochao, Jeremiah Quinn, Solomon Jacobs, William J. Tracy, George Irving, Harold Watts, John L. Reed, William Spenkovitz and William J. Martin.

EUROPEAN WITNESSES FOR THAW

Three Men Crossing Ocean to Tell of Defendant's Insane Acts Abroad

JURY BOX AGAIN FILLED

[illegible] in examining [illegible] was deemed qualified under the [illegible] factory to counsel.

Justice Dowling [illegible] signified his intentions [illegible] of extending the number of [illegible]. At the former trial Justice Fitzgerald [illegible] forty-five, explaining that this was due to the enormous number of talesmen that were examined. But this barely established a precedent, inasmuch as the matter is entirely in the jurisdiction of the presiding justice.

DENY RUMORS OF TROUBLE

Counsel for Thaw [illegible] their denials that there was trouble between Thaw and [illegible]. A. Russell Peabody, personal counsel for Thaw, has taken occasion to [illegible] most of the newspaper correspondents working on the trial and to assure them that there is nothing in the [illegible] reports that the couple are estranged.

Incidentally it has become known that the bills of the insanity experts subpoenaed by the District Attorney to [illegible] amount of [illegible] approximately [illegible] are still held up by Comptroller Metz, who claims they are overcharges.

BOWL OVER MORE TALESMEN IN EFFORT TO COMPLETE JURY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—When the Thaw case was called at 10:30 a. m. today the process of examining talesmen in an effort to complete the jury was at once resumed.

William Livingstone of No. 67 East Eighty-seventh street, the first talesman called, had a fixed opinion and was excused.

The second talesman, Frank [illegible] Jr., an artist of No. [illegible] West Twenty-seventh street, was also allowed to go.

Clayton R. Olcott, a public accountant, who came here from Albany five years ago, said he had little time to read about the case, and had formed no impression as to the guilt or innocence of the accused. He stated that he had no prejudice against insanity as a defence, and had seemingly qualified for service when Assistant District Attorney Garvan interposed a peremptory challenge and he was excused.

The next talesman drawn finally satisfied both sides for the time being at least, and was given seat No. 8, subject to peremptory challenge. He is William H. McHugh, a clerk. He said he had read and [illegible] a great deal about the case, but had [illegible] opinion regarding it. To Justice [illegible] he explained that the question of [illegible] doubt was one [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] meant. [illegible] explained that such doubt was one upon which he would be expected to [illegible] he said he [illegible] would be all right. McHugh is a widower and about [illegible] years of age.

Lectured by the Court.

Jacob C. Waiman, a clerk, was excused, as was also W. Clarence Martin, a broker. Before being dismissed Mr. Martin was lectured by the court because of his prejudice.

William Emmerson, an architect, was acceptable to Garvan when he told Thaw's chief counsel that he knew Mr. McKim of McKim, Meade & White. The defence tried to excuse him without using a peremptory challenge. He insisted that he had no opinion in the case. He also admitted that he was acquainted with Assistant District Attorneys Train and Smythe. Emmerson declared that he knew Mr. White's [illegible], but he told Littleton that even [illegible] would not embarrass him. He was finally excused by consent.

Houston M. [illegible], a banker, united devone. He said that he had read the papers and discussed the case [illegible] with the result that he had formed a [illegible] impression, but [illegible] lay it aside, he said.

Littleton [illegible] defense embodying in his question the instructions to a prospective juror. Justice Dowling sustained Thaw's counsel and ordered the District Attorney to [illegible] his questions to mere inquiry.

By Littleton:

Q. Does your opinion relate directly to the question of the guilt or innocence of this defendant of the crime of murder? A.—I do not think there is a question of that.

Uses Peremptory Challenge

Under the questions of the court the talesman said that he simply referred to the physical appearance of the shooting and not to the legal aspect of guilt. This caused the challenge of the defence to be over-ruled.

By Littleton:

Q. Have you formed an opinion as the possible plea of self-defence? A.—I have.

Q. Have you considered insanity? A.—If that question [illegible] I have reached a conclusion.

Littleton used another peremptory challenge to dismiss the [illegible].

Joseph L. Marcus, who [illegible] to being selected in the [illegible], was excused because he knew [illegible] Stanford White, and had since formed a fixed opinion.

Fred J. Howell, [illegible] at No. 111 Broadway and residing at No. 326 West Eighty-third street, was the [illegible] called today. He was accepted by defence. He said that he would try the case upon the evidence, although he had frequently expressed an opinion about the case.

Mr. Howell said that he would insist upon the [illegible], beyond all possible doubt, that the defendant was sane at the time of the shooting [illegible] of the defence being [illegible] of mind. Mr.

SAY CONSUMPTIVES' FARM IS GOLD BRICK FOR STATE

PROTEST RAISED AGAINST PROPOSED PURCHASE OF LAND IN GEORGETOWN.

That the board for the establishment of three sanatoriums for tubercular patients is about to pay $18,000 for a farm in Georgetown, Essex County, which many people declare to be worth less than half of $18,000, and that Georgetown, because of its "dangerous" inaccessibility, is not a likely place for a home for sick people, [illegible] at the State House.

Nobody [illegible] very long. The chairman of the board is Dr. Arthur T. Cabot of Marlboro street. Dr. Cabot is a relative of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

It is regarded as merely an incident in the general [illegible] that the people of Georgetown do not want a home established among them for consumptives. It is not regarded as [illegible] would [illegible].

Friend of Senator Lodge

The commission has secured an option on a farm known in Georgetown and in Georgetown as the "Little Place." Boston folks call it the "Shaw" farm, after Robert G. Shaw, the present owner. Mr. Shaw's father is an intimate friend of United States Senator Lodge.

The option to buy at $18,000 expires on Tuesday next. Some of the board members fear that if the "Little Place" isn't snapped up by that time the place may be [illegible]. Georgetown [illegible] their [illegible].

The selectmen of Georgetown wanted a hearing on the matter. The board [illegible] given them one in private.

At the hearing, details of which were made public today, Selectmen Metcalf, Harding and Eyes, Representative Coffin of West Newbury, Representative Noyes of Haverhill, Howard H. Noyes, also [illegible] whose property abuts on the Shaw farm, and Dr. Francis G. [illegible], prominent Back Bay physician, who is a Georgetown boy, were all heard in protest.

Farm Assessed for $10,000

They based their objections first on the high cost of the property, with the [illegible] [illegible] cost of putting it in shape. The farm, they said, has been considered the poorest for farming purposes in the entire town of Georgetown, and all who have attempted to farm it have given up in despair.

They stated that for many years the market price of the farm was from $5,000 to $6,000 and that the owner previous to Mr. Shaw purchased it for less than $6,000. They declared that a few years ago Robert G. Shaw, known generally as "Bob" Shaw, paid in the neighborhood of $8,000 for the property. It was assessed for $8,000 shortly after he purchased it. He made a number of improvements for his own convenience, but one of a permanent nature and added a few acres of land at a nominal cost, after which the assessed value was raised to $10,000.

In the opinion of Georgetown people the owners are asking the State twice as much as the farm is worth. Some of the speakers at the hearing stated this.

Farm Inaccessible and Swampy

Nearly all the speakers stated that the farm was the poorest as far as soil was concerned in the entire town. Part of it is clay and a large portion is boggy, only a portion of which was drained by Mr. Little, the previous owner, by building [illegible] soil drains. These will all have to be rebuilt if the soil wants to be dried out. It is now very swampy.

It is proposed to make this place not a Rutland, but a place for consumptives to die in. It was argued that as Georgetown is on a branch railroad and cannot be reached without changes from any central population except Boston, that it would not be advisable to [illegible] the [illegible] there anyway. It was stated that these consumptives would have to make changes from one train to another at [illegible] which would be a hardship to very sick people. The patients would have to be carried on stretchers or ambulances through the centre of the town in order to reach the farm, which would cost a large sum. Although the property abuts the railroad a spur could not be run into it, owing to the boggy nature of the land.

There will be a town meeting in Georgetown Monday night, when the matter will be brought up again for further action.

GOV. HIGGINS WANTS STRONG CURB ON BANKS

ASKS FOR EXAMINER'S ACT IN MESSAGE TO RHODE ISLAND GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 10.—Governor [illegible] H. Higgins today sent his second message to the General Assembly of Rhode Island. In regard to the recent bank panic he said:

"The entire lack of restraint on the management and investment of millions of dollars owned by those of our people in moderate circumstances was never more sadly apparent than in October of the year just past. I recommend the enactment of an approved, modern and strong, but fair, bank examiners' act."

Asks More Power

Regarding representation of the people in the General Assembly he said:

"I recommend most heartily the adoption of a constitutional amendment which will give to all the cities and towns representation in both House and Senate based on the population of such towns and cities."

He urges the abolition of the property qualification for voters.

He renews his request for a law relating to the Governor the power of appointment over the administrative officers of the State of Rhode Island.

He recommends the building of a new [illegible] building for the State Law Library. He recommends an increase in the salaries of supreme and superior court judges because of the increased cost of living.

Would Curb Lobbying

He recommends a more rigorous law to punish automobile drivers who run cars at too dangerous speed.

Regarding the Rhode Island lobby, Governor Higgins says:

"I have no objection whatever to legitimate lobbying for reputable and public purposes. It ought to be regulated, however, as is done in some other States, for instance in Massachusetts, where any person [illegible] as a lobbyist must give the names of the persons by whom he is employed, as well as the purposes, date [illegible] of his employment."

Howell was shown to [illegible] chair No. 9.

The Joke Is on O'Reilly

William I. Sondheim, a broker, told Garvan that he knew O'Reilly by reputation. He added that the fact would not influence him, however, and every one laughed at O'Reilly. Harry Thaw [illegible] broad smile. Mr. Sondheim was accepted provisionally. Mr. Sondheim [illegible] of sufficient strength to undergo the strain of the trial, and it is expected that he will be excused by consent.

William Burck, assistant secretary of the Bowery branch of the Y. M. C. A. at No. 135 Bowery, passed Garvan's examination.

"I read of the shooting in a casual way," he said, "and I presume I must have read some of the evidence of the trial. I never heard the case discussed at the Y. M. C. A.," he added.

Mr. Burck said that he was single and had served on a capital case about eleven years ago in this city.

He is white-haired, blue-eyed, clean-shaven and a man of perhaps forty-five years of age. Along with Howell, Sondheim took seat No. 9, the retiring of the former as [illegible] was concerned.

Mr. Burck was accepted.

George P. Graham, a clerk, was accepted by defence after a few stereotyped questions. He was excused after Littleton questioned him.

Twelve Seats Filled.

Joseph I. McIntosh, real estate; Thomas Kelly, retired; Benjamin Dentz, a [illegible]; Richard F. H. Winters, Jr., coal merchant; William H. C. Kane, cattle manufacturer, and Charles K. Darrow, an actor, were excused because of their opinions.

Henry Dinsmore, manufacturer of cardboard, had no opinion in the case. He had read considerable about it, but had only a slight impression in the matter which he could easily set aside. He is a married man with a family. He was finally given seat twelve, subject to peremptory challenge.

[illegible] adjourned a recess until 2 o'clock.

BRYAN'S DAUGHTER AND ARTIST HUSBAND PART

Daughter of William Jennings Bryan, who, it is declared, has left her husband, the noted sculptor, and will seek a divorce. She married without the consent of her father and despite his displeasure.

BOTH IN EUROPE, BUT DO NOT MEET—HE IS NOT EXPECTED TO RETURN.

OMAHA, Jan. 10.—William Homer Leavitt, husband of W. J. Bryan's daughter Ruth, has been in Paris six months and will never rejoin his wife, according to authentic advices received here. The latest information, received today, was from Mrs. Leavitt, who is also abroad. It was contained in a letter to Miss Edith Locke, a classmate of Mrs. Leavitt's at Nebraska University, to whom the portrait painter's wife announces that she would not see her husband while in Europe, where she is with her mother, and that she did not expect her husband to return to the United States.

Mrs. Leavitt spent nearly two months here last Fall visiting school chums, who, besides Miss Locke, are Miss Comstock and Miss Clark. Investigation reveals the fact that at this time she confidentially informed several of her intimates that she had broken off relations with her husband. It is said that the announcement made to Miss Locke is not the first made by Mrs. Leavitt in letters to friends in Omaha that her married life with Leavitt was at an end.

In preparing for the present European trip, on which she recently sailed from New York, Mrs. W. J. Bryan invited a Miss Raymond of Lincoln to accompany her and her daughter. The question of Mr. Leavitt's movements being mentioned, Mrs. Bryan is reported to have said that her son-in-law was already in Paris, and that probably he would never return.

The Leavitt home in Denver is closed and has been so neglected that it was ransacked a few nights and robbed of its valuables.

LEAVITT IN PARIS STUDYING ART; HIS MOTHER WITH HIM

NEWPORT, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Aaron L. Leavitt is with her son, William Homer Leavitt, in Paris, where the young man is pursuing his art studies. The elder Leavitt said last night that he had no knowledge of any trouble between his son and Mr. Bryan's daughter. It was understood here that Mrs. Leavitt, the younger, had gone abroad to join her husband.

Soon after the marriage, and while Leavitt and his wife were in New Orleans, where, and at Denver, they have lived most of the time, Miss Wilhelmina Cook, music teacher and church organist at Newport, and daughter of a laborer, declared that Leavitt had been guilty of a breach of promise of marriage with her, and a damage suit was threatened. Nothing was done.

It is understood that Leavitt, as a son-in-law, was never pleasing to Mr. Bryan, and that there was practically no communication between the two until two months after the first child, a daughter, was born to the Leavitts, eleven months after the marriage. Then Mr. Bryan went to New Orleans to see his granddaughter. A son was born to the Leavitts, at Denver, in November, 1905. He was not named after his grandfather.

$1,000 REWARD FOR SLAYER OF MILL GIRL

POLICE BELIEVE MURDERER IS IN HIDING WHERE HIS VICTIM WAS KILLED.

GREENVILLE, R. I., Jan. 10.—In an effort to arouse the entire community in the search for the murderer of Miss Mary Eddy, who was killed and robbed of her week's pay while on her way home last Friday night, rewards of $1,000 have been offered. Of this amount, $500 has been appropriated by the town of Smithfield and a like sum by Treasurer Gulle of the Greenville Woolen Company, where the murdered woman was employed.

Representations are to be made to Governor Higgins, asking that the State take up the case and also announce a reward. Notices announcing the sum that will be paid for the apprehension of the murderer are to be posted in all surrounding towns.

The two Providence inspectors, Haran and Monahan, who have been working on the case this week, after having followed every clue presented to them, have failed to locate a person who could furnish them with any reliable information. There was no witness to the murder of Miss Eddy, yet the detectives are positive that the man who killed Miss Eddy is located in town and is still here.

The murderer knew all about the pay time of the employés, knew that Miss Eddy had been warned to carry her money in her stocking. He knew where in the mill yard lay the discarded implements, one of which could be used for the purpose of striking down his victim so that the robbery could be easily accomplished.

This man has given no sign, has not made any suspicious move which would attract attention to himself. He is apparently resting secure in the belief that he will not be discovered.

Inspector Haran, however, says that he believes that this man will be found, that the officers are not discouraged by the failure that has met them so far.

"I firmly believe that the murderer of Miss Eddy will be brought to justice and very soon," Inspector Haran said today.

It is believed that with the offering of the two rewards that everybody in the town will be constituted a detective and that the suspicious moves of any man will be promptly reported to the officers.

CAPT. CARTER LOSES CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Judge Kohlsaat in the United States Circuit Court rendered a decision yesterday in favor of the Government in the suit against Captain Oberlin M. Carter, former United States Army Engineer, charged with having defrauded the Federal Government to the extent of $700,000 by conspiracy with contractors Greene and Gaynor.

The Court ruled that Carter was not entitled to the $400,000 in unregistered railroad bonds and other securities traced by the Government to safety deposit vaults and banks in various parts of the country. Under the decision the Government will retain the securities, and the famous case, which resulted in the conviction of Captain Carter and of Green and Gaynor, and the imposing of penitentiary sentences, is brought to a close.

DEBATE RIGHT OF WOMEN TO WORK IN SHOP

Should married women be allowed to work? David Goldstein of Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 says "No." Joseph Spero of the same local union says "Yes."

The two men threshed the whole question out in a debate before the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, No. 264 Boylston street, and today the members of the organization are continuing the argument pro and con in their homes and at their employment.

Mr. Goldstein [illegible] has recently decided that union cards should be refused married women whose husbands are able to earn a living and why his union voted as it did. Mr. Spero told the why he voted that women should be given opportunity to work if they wished.

"Union labor works not for an individual wage," said Mr. Goldstein, "but for a wage adapted to the support of a family. Where husband and wife work together at a trade the tendency is to eventually bring wages down to the point where the two receive only about as much as each originally received."

"A woman who is relegated to the kitchen for life suffers social death," insisted Mr. Spero in his argument for women's right to work. "She becomes in time a prey to the tyranny of man. No one is justified in depriving any woman of the right to work if she prefers to.

"There are many instances where cigarmakers who earn good wages spend their money in saloons and give nothing to their wives for the support of their children."

GORHAM PLANT SHUTS DOWN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 10.—The plant of the Gorham Manufacturing Company, silverware manufacturers, will be shut down for two weeks, beginning January 24, for the annual stock taking.

"MEN BEHIND" SILENT ON ANTI-LEAGUE BILL

The "men behind" [illegible] refused to allow the disclosing of their identity, regarding as Representative Frost, [illegible] of Ward 10, Roxbury, who [illegible] petition signed by [illegible] along [illegible] two leading political parties [illegible] to mean [illegible] the standing [illegible] which have elected the greatest [illegible] greatest number of Representatives [illegible] members."

The [illegible] that the main [illegible] in question [illegible] the political parties which [illegible] and next highest number of [illegible] for Governor at the preceding annual election. The bill drafted by Representative Frost and "some others," [illegible] fail the wishes of the 75,000 [illegible] voted for Thomas L. Hisgen [illegible].

It would [illegible] members of the Independence League [illegible] second party in Massachusetts [illegible] partisan [illegible] Frost and "the others" [illegible] to pass a bill [illegible] hurdle for the League in everything.

Representative Frost, according to himself, is actuated by the highest motives in introducing his bill. He feels, according to himself, that the present method of determining the two leading political parties is unfair. He "wishes it understood" that he is not directing his bill against the Independence League. The exact motive of "the others" behind the bill he is not prepared to explain.

Interviewed by an AMERICAN reporter immediately after he filed his petition, Mr. Frost didn't appear to know much about the matter.

"I drafted the bill [illegible]."

Then he admitted that "others" had assisted in the drafting process.

The identities of "the others" he could not give until he had seen them. An AMERICAN reporter again approached him about "the others."

He had seen them, with the result that their names must remain a dark secret until the bill comes up for a hearing before the committee on election laws.

WHY?

GIVE OPERETTA FOR CHARITY

To aid the fund for the new home for needy girls fought by the Ladies' Catholic Club, a dainty operetta, "The Japanese Girl," was given in [illegible] hall last night. Fifty young women from the leading Catholic families in the [illegible] took part in the cast. The operetta was under the direction of Miss Mary A. Burr.

The work of Miss Elizabeth [illegible] Nagle of Cambridge, who recently returned from her studies abroad, was received again and again. The other principal parts were taken by Miss Suzanne [illegible], Miss Eunice A. Dwyer and Mrs. [illegible] Francis Carey, who closely rivalled the work of Miss Nagle. The [illegible] chorus performed by some of the most graceful dancers in the city was a [illegible] feature of the programme.

Miss Catherine L. Cullen, Miss Helen M. Cahill, Miss Helen Keenan, Miss Susie Campbell and Miss Annie Higgins were also prominent in the cast. The popular [illegible] was given by the Misses Mary Cahill, Frances [illegible], Marion Horne, Katherine Kelley, Madeline McMorrow and Sybil Vincent.

Those in the Chrysanthemum dance were the Misses Helen Callahan, Frances Campbell, Helen Cahill, May Connolly, Helen Flood and Margaret [illegible]. The Misses Eleanor [illegible], Mildred Cushman, Mary Lynch and Margaret O'Brien gave the Japanese dance, and the Cherry Blossom dance, which concluded the programme, was given by the Misses Louise Donovan and Ellen Wilson.

WANTS BOYS TAUGHT IN WORKSHOP

Industrial Education Discussed at Civic Federation Banquet.

"Our present provision for public education is inadequate," declared Professor Paul H. Hanus of Harvard.

"The trade school has not the atmosphere of the trade shop," J. F. Deems, general superintendent of motive power of the New York Central lines, said.

"The workshop is the only place where an education can be gained that is thorough and practical," declared James O'Connell of Washington, president of the International Association of Machinists.

"When the average boy says he doesn't want to wear overalls and soil his hands he means that he is afraid he will not be thought a gentleman," is the way the Rev. Father Thomas I. Gasson of Boston College sizes up modern conditions.

Talk on Industrial Education

Industrial education, its vital necessity and what present systems lack was the theme discussed by Professor Hanus of Harvard, J. F. Deems of New York, James O'Connell of Washington and the Rev. Father T. I. Gasson, S. J., of Boston College at the third banquet of the Civic Federation of New England, in the Ford Building, Ashburton place, last night.

"Our present provision for public education is inadequate," said Professor Hanus of Harvard, who is chairman of the Massachusetts Commission on Industrial Education. "Its dominant aim is general culture, but it makes no provision for training for specific usefulness in some skilled vocation.

"There is plainly shown the need of industrial schools," he continued, "to supplement the existing public schools. Such schools should receive pupils of fourteen or fifteen years of age who declare their intention to learn a trade."

"The trade school has not the atmosphere of the trade shop," said Mr. Deems, among other things. "You know that a young man may be a poor mechanic but a good preacher. The United States must look to the apprentice system for its salvation. Men must not only be skilful craftsmen, but also honest, upright and intelligent men."

Said Mr. O'Connell: "The workshop is the only place where an education can be gained that is practical and thorough and calculated to fill the requirements that go to make up a full-fledged mechanic. The industrial school merely supplies a veneer of education."

Approves Schools in Factories.

"I believe that the proper and best method to be adopted are for employers to establish schools in connection with their factories and workshops for the purpose of giving young men employed by them an opportunity for a few hours schooling each day."

Rev. Father Gasson said: "I cannot and never will admit that there can be too much education. I will say that there can be misdirected education. When the average boy says he doesn't want to wear overalls and soil his hands with oil he means that he is afraid he will not be thought a gentleman. He should remember that all labor is clean.

"If he has the whitest hands and the finest broadcloth and his conscience is soiled, then his work is not clean. I [illegible] there is nothing more ennobling than labor in which the hands are soiled. [illegible] is no crown so noble as that worn [illegible]."

Why I Lost My Job.

Reasons Why Thousands Like Me Cannot Satisfy Their Employers.

"I believe my fate is not unlike that of thousands of other workers who daily lose their places for reasons they do not know and probably would not believe. When their last pay envelope comes along, it is usually 'Your services no longer required.' If the truth were known, the reason for their unceremonious removal would probably be that their usefulness was destroyed because of some mental worry, bodily ailment or general indisposition. These things, as we all know, are the most fruitful causes of failure in all walks of life. The battle of Waterloo was lost because of a headache. In this quick age our minds must be clear, rapid, active and free from outside influence or worry, or else we go down to failure with the throng of 'floaters' who go from one place of employment to another, giving no satisfaction to others or to themselves, constantly growing older and less useful, with no ambition, no will power and no hope.

Every man requires from every other man the best that is in him. But no man can use or get the best that is in himself until he is first free from all fretful indispositions and worries.

That was my trouble. I was full of troubles. That's why I lost my job. My stomach, in the first place, was always out of order, and I was worrying about it, and my mind grew cloudy and slow. I made mistakes, and grew grouchy. That was the end.

There are thousands like me, going about with "quick lunch" faces, dyspeptic manners and repulsive atmospheres. No employer wants such men's services.

Take my advice. A healthy stomach is half the battle, for it keeps your mind clear and your face rosy. I have a healthy stomach now and hold a good position, and my employer is satisfied, and so am I.

I started to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which I was told were good for the worst cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. The first two tablets made a wonderful difference in my condition.

One ingredient of Stuart's dyspepsia Tablets digests [illegible] grains of food. The stomach doesn't have to work at all. The Tablets do all the work, no matter how heavy your meal.

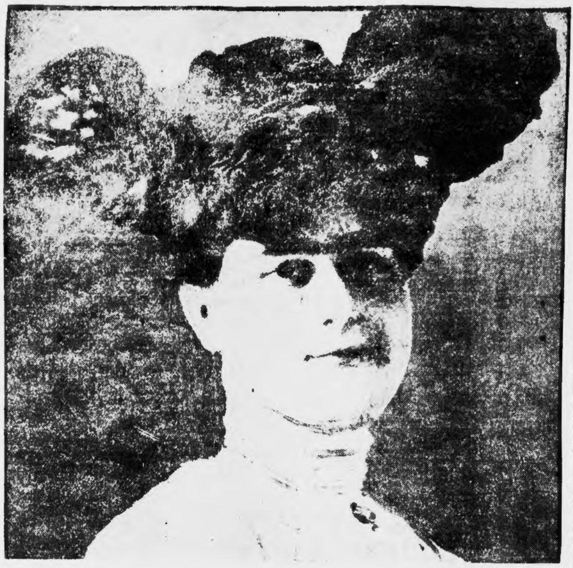
Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloat, irritations, loss of appetite, nausea, heartburn, lack of energy, loss of memory and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry them around with you wherever you go and take them regularly after meals. Then you will realize what it is to be freed from stomach torment, and have a clear mind, a quick memory, a happy disposition, comfort and rest. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store for 50c a package.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

HERE IS THE MISSING GEORGIE DICKINSON

She is the much-sought witness whom the police believe holds the key to the "Swamp Murder Mystery." She is said to be in Boston. Have you seen her?



Police Get Trace of Georgie Dickinson

TRAIL GIRL WITNESS IN HUB

Hiding Place of Woman Believed to Know Solution of Swamp Mystery Soon to Be Known.

It is now known positively that Georgie Dickinson, the most important witness in the Lena Whitmore murder case at Harrison, N. J., is hiding in Boston. Persons well acquainted with her have talked to the police and have assured them that Mrs. Dickinson has not left town.

The detectives who have been chasing the woman for several days believe that they will be able to interview her some time to-day. The importance of her testimony is so great that wires from New Jersey counsel that no means be spared to find the woman.

Dispatches from Harrison say that the presence of Fred W. Elliot, the Auburndale locomotive fireman, who went to New York last night and gave his statement about the doings at the Whitmore house for three days after Christmas, on which day Mrs. Whitmore was murdered, has so frenzied Theodore Whitmore, accused of the murder of his wife, that an extra guard has been set over him.

Whitmore Pleads for Razor

Informed that Elliot was in Harrison, Whitmore pleaded with one of his guards to secure a razor for him saying that he wanted to shave himself. His anxiety was so great that Judge Brannegan, to obviate his having a razor, ordered that he should be fed in his cell instead of allowing him knife and fork, and even had his suspenders taken from him.

Georgie Dickinson has proved elusive at all times since it was known that she arrived in Boston. Two years ago she was well known about the city, and she has a number of staunch friends who, it is believed, are concealing her somewhere in [illegible] boarding house district.

A number of headquarters men have been tramping out for days, but have had no track of her since she left the Hotel Rexford on Wednesday morning, although she has been seen by people who know her.

Wrote Note on Magazine.

The police are keeping an eye on the Postoffice, for when the woman left New York she left her name and address, written by herself, on the cover of a magazine. In this case she called herself Charlotte McDonald, which is said by many to be her real name. She did not leave any street address but put on simply "G. D., Boston."

Harry Dickinson is in New York at his [illegible] boarding house. He got that he [illegible] that he would not leave town, and while the police are satisfied that he knows nothing concerning the murder, they are keeping him under surveillance.

Fred W. Elliot of Auburndale, the locomotive fireman who was taken into custody, charged with being an accessory after the fact of the murder, is now in New York, having left the city yesterday afternoon.

Elliott Put on Rack.

Frederick C. Ching, counsel for Elliott, was in New York and on his return advised his client to return without waiting for extradition papers.

On his arrival in New York, Elliott was taken immediately to the Manhattan Hotel where he was met by Police Captain Conroy and Detectives Moats and Rooney of Brooklyn, Mr. Charles, his counsel, and Prosecutor Vickers, and for five hours the prisoner was subjected to the most searching questioning by the legal and police experts.

Police Deny Whitmore Use of Razor in Cell and Take Knife, Fork and Spoon from Him.

"A [illegible] confession did Elliott make that he [illegible] that he will be [illegible] of his counsel and will be a [illegible] witness for the State in the case against Whitmore.

UNDISMAYED, HENEY AGAIN AFTER SCHMITZ

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—Francis J. Heney, special prosecutor and chief [illegible] of the graft ring in San Francisco, was undismayed to-day by the undoing by the Court of Appeals of his work in the conviction of former Mayor Schmitz on the charge of extorting money from the keepers of the French cafes.

"Even though it probably will have to be conceded that the decision holding the conviction of Schmitz invalid will affect the conviction of Abe Ruef, on his plea of guilty, I do not think the work of the prosecution will be [illegible] with great [illegible]," said Heney.

"There are so many indictments against Ruef and Schmitz that the district attorney's office will have light enough in bringing them to trial whenever [illegible] to.

"The big men of the prosecution are just beginning and this decision will not deter them. The chief [illegible] Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railways, will be pushed with all possible speed."

GARTLAND OUT FOR CITY CLERKSHIP

William T. Gartland, for ten years a clerk in the City Collector's office, is a candidate for City Clerk.

Mr. Gartland has been elected for two successive years as president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

KAISER NEAR COLLAPSE, TO FLEE BERLIN

Special Cable to the Hearst News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Berlin and Europe are again alarmed by the Kaiser's condition of health. Even persons connected with the court admit reluctantly that another collapse is imminent, it may be a protracted illness, and that nothing will forestall serious consequences but a sojourn in a warm climate.

Accordingly, the Emperor will start for Corfu as soon as politics—particularly the American-Japanese situation—permit.

In Corfu His Majesty will occupy the villa of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria. When he acquired that property it was given out that it might be turned into a consumptives' home. Both climate and other circumstances favoring the spot. Since it has been of late asserted that the Kaiser might fall a victim to the white plague, the statement assumes great significance. The press of Germany, of course, is silent on the subject, the Kaiser does not allow a single line to be published about his condition.

"It would be water on the mills of the socialists and the rest of the opposition to give them details of my affliction," William is reported as having said.

BEAUTY STARTS LONG JOURNEY TO SWEETHEART

A pretty little romance begins its final chapter to-day when Silvery May Snellen, one of Marblehead's fairest daughters, leaves the famous seacoast town for Porto Rico to wed her childhood sweetheart. She will journey to New York by rail and then to Naguabo, where she will meet John B. Ingalls, formerly of Marblehead.

The tale is an interesting one. Miss Snellen, considered by many the handsomest daughter of old Marblehead, was a classmate of young Ingalls and they became sweethearts.

Young Ingalls went away to one of Uncle Sam's new possessions to try his fortune and is now the manager of a large fruit plantation in Porto Rico. The owner, A. D. Preston of Swampscott, thinks a great deal of his young and able representative in the far away land.

Miss Snellen is due to arrive at San Juan January 15. The trip will then be continued to Naguabo, where the marriage ceremony will be performed. The young couple will locate in that town and will occupy one of the mansions on the plantation.

Miss Snellen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Snellen, and is a striking brunette.

DOCTOR'S ORDER WAS: 'CUTICURA'

For a Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Suffered for Three Months—Disease Reached a Fearful State—Pain and Itching were Terrible.

CURED AFTER OTHER PRESCRIPTIONS FAILED

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

ITCHING CURED

With Cuticura Remedies in Three Days After Six Months of Suffering.

"I suffered fully six months. The trouble began on my arms in little red pimples and it was not long before it was all over my body, limbs, face, and hands. It was so bad that I could not rest night or day and during the six months, I did not get a good night's sleep. I doctored for three or four months and spent at least twenty dollars trying to find a cure but none could be found. Then I saw the Cuticura Remedies advertised, and the next day I purchased some for seventy-five cents at the druggist's. I used them and I was relieved of the itching in three days, and I have never had a sign of any skin disease since. The Cuticura Remedies are the only remedies to use for skin diseases, they have cured me and they will cure others in the same way. J. W. Bloom, R. R. Telegrapher, Holloway, Mich., Nov. 20 and Dec. 29, 1906."

Cuticura Remedies are guaranteed absolutely pure under the United States Food and Drugs Act.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, Cuticura Book on Skin Diseases.

ASKS FOR LAW TO LET VOTERS DIRECT SOLONS

Public Opinion League Asks For Referendum on Public Policy Questions.

BILL DEFEATED LAST YEAR

Legislation to make effective the constitutional rights of the people to give instructions to their senators and representatives was petitioned for to-day by Robert Treat Paine, Jr., for the Massachusetts Public Opinion League. Representative Hultman of Quincy is sponsor of the bill. Hultman of Quincy is sponsor of the bill.

A similar bill introduced by Representative Luce was defeated last year by a narrow margin after one of the bitterest fights in the session.

1,200 voters in any senatorial district or by 200 voters in any representative district for the submission to the voters of said district the question of instructions to the Senator or Representatives of that district, the Secretary of the Commonwealth shall determine if such question is a public policy.

If he so determines he shall draft the question and place it upon the official ballot at the next State election. Petitions must be filed at least sixty days before the State election with the Secretary of State.

Not more than two questions shall be submitted to voters of a district at one time, and a question, if negatived, shall not be presented again for three years.

NOVEL K. OF C. SHOW PLANNED

Boston Chapter K. of C. has arranged a decidedly novel event for to-morrow afternoon, when it presents a digest of the "Mirrors of Thule" libretto, the comic opera which is to be given under the auspices of the chapter next month.

The event will take place at the [illegible] studio on Boylston street beginning at [illegible] o'clock and a number of well known Boston women have been invited to a private matinee.

Part of the cast of the original opera will be present and present a number or two to give an inkling of the music and plot embodied in the show, and Professor John A. O'Shea, the composer, will direct those who are to take part. William H. Leahy, the author, will also be present and assist.

Readings will be given by Robert W. Harley, the dramatic instructor now drilling the cast, and Thomas Harrison Cummings will give a "picture" talk on Michael Angelo.

LATEST LEGISLATIVE PETITIONS AND BILLS

CHANGES ASKED IN ELECTION, VETERANS' PREFERENCE AND CIVIL SERVICE LAWS.

The Commission on Commerce and Industry, whose report is due, has asked that its powers be extended until the second Wednesday in March. It has investigated and is still investigating transportation matters whose nature is so complex that more time is necessary.

* * *

Senator [illegible] of Boston has had taken from last year's files the petition of F. Frank Wood and others that proprietors of lodging houses and hotels be compelled to equip their gas fixtures with automatic gas appliances.

* * *

The following petitions were today filed at the State House:

Senate

Of Albert [illegible] of Boston: That publication of legislative and other documents be limited to newspapers admitted to mails as second class matter.

House

Of Representative [illegible] of Cambridge: That property hereafter acquired by Harvard University be subject to taxation.

Of Representative [illegible] of Gloucester: That election officers be appointed by boards of registrars instead of by Mayors.

Of Representative Fox of Boston: That the city of Boston retire on half pay, but not to exceed $[illegible], any veteran of the Civil or Spanish War who, having served the city fifteen or more years, has reached the age of sixty-five years, or has become unable to work.

Of John [illegible]: To compel railroads to issue round trip tickets between Boston and suburban stations at the lowest rate charged, except for season and working men's tickets.

Of Representative [illegible] of Medford: For weekly payment of wages to city, town, county and State employes.

Of Frank M. [illegible]: That chief engineers, assistant engineers and district engineers of fire departments be put on permanent basis under civil service.

Of William T. A. Fitzgerald, register of deeds for Suffolk County: To provide [illegible] discharge of real estate mortgages and to authorize use of stamping pads on public records.

Of Charles F. Choate, Jr.: For adjustment of claims against the State growing out of [illegible] other than personal injuries.

Of A. H. Hews & Co.: That pottery kilns be exempted from smoke statute, which provides that no smoke of any kind will be allowed to emit dark or thick gray smoke for more than five minutes continually nor [illegible] minutes in twelve consecutive hours.

Of William B. [illegible]: That Essex County commissioners be authorized to borrow $[illegible] to erect a police court building in Lynn.

Of Albert C. [illegible]: For $5,000 appropriation for improvements at State Normal School, Westfield.

Of Plymouth County Commissioners: For authority to purchase land and erect House of Correction and to borrow $[illegible] for same.

Of Daniel C. [illegible]: To establish a boundary between Fitchburg and Westminster.

Of Peter F. J. [illegible], corporation clerk in Secretary of State's office: For salary increase from $1,[illegible] to $2,000 per annum.

REPORT FILED BY THE P. S. A.

The returns of the Public School Association, filed at the office of the city clerk today, show the receipts for the year to have been $12,445.97, the expenditures $10,164.65, and the balance on hand $2,280.32. The largest item in the expenditures was $3,000 for the salary of the secretary.

Joseph Lee and Mrs. Henry Lee were the heaviest contributors to the association during the year. They gave $1,000 each. John C. Moors of the finance commission and H. L. Higginson gave $500 each. President Laurence Minot of the Good Government Association contributed $300, Mary L. Ware $250, Mrs. F. C. Shattuck, Augustus Hemenway, Mrs. Wallace C. Cabot, John E. Thayer, A. Lawrence Lowell and W. L. Putnam, $200 each, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jackson $150, and Fannie P. Mason $150.

WEEKS ON COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Speaker Cannon has announced the appointment of Representative John W. Weeks of Massachusetts to the Committee on Agriculture.

ASKS NEW LAW ON DISBARMENT

Dissatisfied with the method under which disbarment proceedings are now conducted, George A. Perkins has filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives a petition asking for legislation to change the statute regarding these cases so that disbarment proceedings can only be brought on the advice of the Attorney General, following an investigation by that official.

Under the present law the complaint in disbarment proceedings is first made to the Bar Association, which, on investigation, if sufficient ground is found, presents the case to a justice of a Superior Court.

SAYS PHONE RATES ARE 'ROBBERY'

Counsel Declares Charges In Hub Should Be Cut Eleven Per Cent.

RIDICULES TRUST CLAIMS

Ridiculing the claims of the Telephone Trust that it had reduced the average rental of telephones in Boston from $100 to $48, [illegible] Whitman, counsel for the petitioners for lower telephone rates, declared before the Highway Commission that the commission would be justified in ordering a reduction of eleven and one-half per cent in the present rates of the [illegible]. He based this claim upon the rates fixed by the Chicago Telephone Commission.

Mr. Whitman declared that in order to get the figure of $48 the Telephone Trust has reckoned every telephone in a branch exchange as a subscriber. He said if the number of actual subscribers is taken it will be found that the average rental is $60. "The company's charges for extension sets are 'highway robbery,'" he declared. "The figures show that they cost [illegible] $1.75 and the company gets from $5 to $9," he added.

Taking up the question of free telephones, he said he could see no difference between a legislator being given a pass over a railroad line and over a telephone line. The Albree report, he said, shows that it has been the custom of the company to give members of the Legislature free telephone service from the State House. He thought if the State considers its legislators should have the right to use the telephone without paying for it the State should assume the burden of payment.

As to political contributions, the Albree report showing that in 1904 the company made such contributions to the amount of $1,176.37, and in 1905 to the amount of $29.35, Mr. Whitman said there is no doubt that such contributions were improper and he recommended that the commission instruct the corporation to bring suit against the individuals making the payments for their recovery. If such action were taken, he said, the matter of campaign contributions would automatically adjust itself.

OPEN RAILROAD IN GUATEMALA

GUATEMALA CITY, Jan. 10.—Guatemala is celebrating today the official opening of the ocean-to-ocean railway, just completed after twenty-five years' work and delay at a cost said to be greater per mile than that of any other line on earth.

Though the system is only 270 miles long, the difficulties of its construction through the mountainous country which it traverses almost from sea to sea were long declared insurmountable and did, indeed, tax to the utmost the skill of the American engineers who finally brought the work to a successful termination.

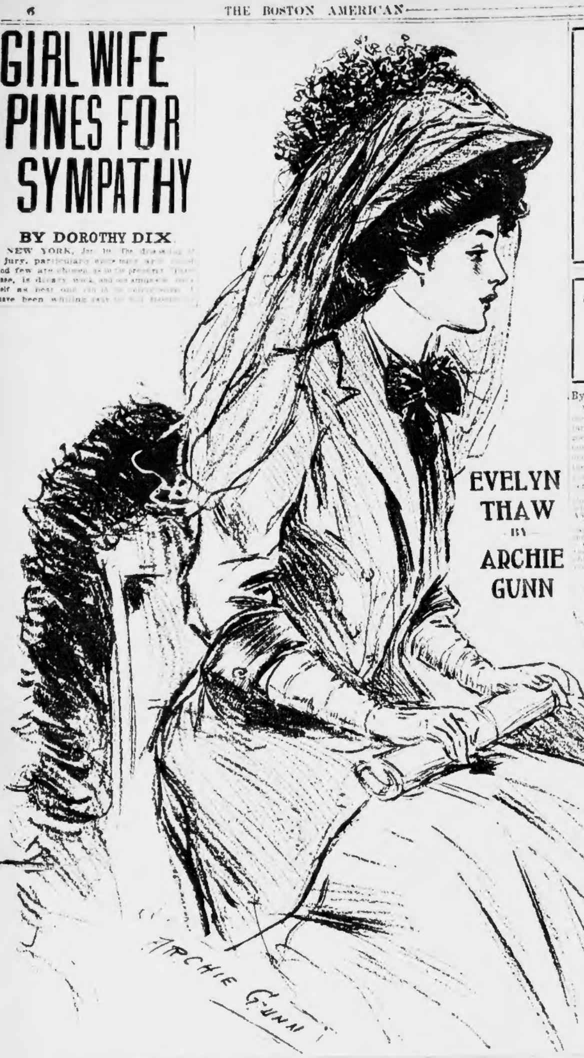
GIRL WIFE PINES FOR SYMPATHY

BY DOROTHY DIX.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The drawing of a jury, particularly when many are called and few are chosen, as in the present Thaw case, is dreary work, and one amuses one self as best one can in the courtroom. I have been whiling away the dull [illegible]



EVELYN THAW
—BY—
ARCHIE GUNN

staring and staring at Evelyn Thaw [illegible] for the sheer delight of looking at a [illegible] face so exquisitely beautiful.

Presently I caught her eyes and smiled involuntarily, as one does at sight of a lovely child. She smiled back the quick, spontaneous, gentle, friendly smile that springs so readily to her lips. I [illegible] my [illegible] ered recognition. She [illegible] back. I nodded. She wagged her [illegible] head in sympathy, and [illegible] communication was established.

"I wager," I said to the man sitting beside me, "that she would like to be sitting over here with us in the newspaper box, making comments on the jurors and guessing and saying funny things."

"Let's ask her," he responded, and so the beginning of the [illegible].

Her lawyers opened a tiny crack in the jealously guarded door that leads into the witness room set apart for the Thaw family, and we found little Mrs. Thaw leaning against the wall, waiting for us and looking, in her little simple blue frock and white collar, more like a school girl than ever.

LONESOME WHERE SHE IS.

Curiously enough, except that you have only to watch her to see that her mind is as open to every impression as a sensitized plate—her greeting answered our question.

"I was wishing," she said, wistfully, "that I could sit over there with you and hear what you are all talking about. You seem to have such good times. It's lonesome where I am."

Her tone was that of an aggrieved child who is out of the game and can't play with its fellows. She was lonesome. She wanted somebody to talk to, somebody to whisper to, somebody to catch the swift point of the witty and cynical comments that flashed into her mind at every turn of the [illegible]. She doesn't find that [illegible] in the stony faced brother-in-law [illegible] the [illegible] looking sister-in-law who bear her company.

That is a companionship enforced, so plain that one can see the very [illegible] hanging from it.

"I wish," I said, "that you would show us some of the caricatures you drew of us during the last trial. I heard they were enormously clever."

"Oh, I tore them all up," she cried with a laugh, and she has got the sweetest laugh, the jolliest, merriest, most whole-hearted laugh you ever heard.

CARICATURED THE PEOPLE.

"When they barred me out of the court room and I had to wait out here," and she gave a comprehensive sweep of her hand around the bare yellow walled room, with its hard chairs and long, official looking table, "I amused myself drawing funny pictures of the people in the court room, but I burnt them all up. I was so afraid during the last trial that I would do something to injure the case that I scarcely breathed."

"That was a clever caricature you drew of yourself," I ventured, for Evelyn's wit is of a kind that does not spare her own peculiarities, and she had given to one of the artists a deliciously funny little picture she had drawn of herself as a [illegible] all forlorn, and under which she had written "the pallid chee-ild." The brown eyes that are all amber lights and flashing impressiveness gave me a glance of retrospective amusement and appreciation. Then they darkened into gloom as the newspaper man turned to her and said:

"I see that you haven't lost your sense of hu[illegible] Stua[illegible] Marshall, Mich. [illegible]ed with a sort of catch [illegible]n't lost my sense of humor. [illegible] the only way I can stand this."

We tried to tell her for her comfort we didn't believe that this trial would be so long as the last.

SHE IS USED TO IT NOW.

"It wouldn't be so terrible for me any way," she said bravely. "I have gotten used to things somehow, I suppose. But last time it was horrible. I would go home and almost cry my eyes out when the papers said dreadful things about me, of course. And I read them all to see what they do say. But I don't take it so much to heart—all the things they tell about me, you know."

The lovely face, that has always a touch of pathos even in its mirth, drooped like a flower. There was a far away look in her eyes as she continued:

"It's queer how you change, isn't it? And how you forget. All the bitterness of the last trial, all the things that hurt me so, are getting dim in my mind, passing away. I have lost all of the hard feeling, even, that I had towards anyone. After the trial was over I tried to forget it. I never even looked at my testimony until last night. I purposely kept from looking at it."

"Are you, then, going on the witness stand again?" I inquired.

"Oh, we couldn't get along without her," Dan O'Reilly put in.

A little strained silence fell upon the group as each of us thought of what it meant for this little, delicate, dainty, dresden china bit of womanhood to go again through that purgatory across whose burning ploughshares we had once seen her walk with quivering feet. It was horrible enough for her to have to once strip the mantle of decent silence from about the shameful secrets of her past, and tell the things that blister a woman's lips to utter. It seemed inhuman to make her go through the ordeal twice.

But if she shrinks from it, she makes no outcry, and asks for no mercy. She spoke of it simply as one of the duties of the trial that she must perform. I could have taken her in my arms and wept over her with sympathy, but she had no tears for herself for what she had to do. She stood there, so little, so young, so childish looking, so helpless in appearance, [illegible] and quietly discussing doing a thing that calls for almost superhuman bravery, and the spectacle left one gasping in amazement.

What is it that nerves this frail creature to making such a sacrifice? Is it some dim idea of penance for the follies of her youth? If so, assuredly after her last open confession the recording angel has blotted out the score against her. Is it because of the love she bears her husband? Then never was man loved as he is.

"Thaw's Heart Is Good, But Brain Abnormal"

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

Mr. Littleton, provided he is fortunate enough to get an intelligent, fair-minded jury, should find no difficulty in making good his case. Physiognomy—if physiognomy amounts to anything at all—has but one possible verdict to render concerning the character of Harry Kendall Thaw, and that verdict is altogether in favor of the defense.

After a careful study of Thaw's face at close range I have reached the conclusion which I now give to the readers of the AMERICAN.

Thaw's face is not a bad one. It is not the face of a murderer. Its lines are not indicative of the brutal or the beastly.

On the other hand, it is a kindly face—the face of a man with whom the little children might fall in love; a generous, friendly, large-hearted man.

HAS A GOOD HEART.

If Harry Thaw lived back in the Italy of the Borgias he would never have been selected by the princely assassins as one of their tools. The men who carried out the plots of that execrable period were not men, but fiends. Thaw is not a fiend. The agents of those horrible crimes had no hearts. But Thaw has a heart—and a very good one, too.

But Thaw is pronouncedly abnormal, and the abnormality is almost entirely mental. In a word, Thaw is a man of unstable mental equilibrium. He is not well balanced. Like the body resting on a very small pivot, he is liable to sudden and abrupt action. It is impossible to study the young man's face without seeing that he is deplorably lacking in self control and in that splendid thing called "poise."

When the great Themistocles was one day threatened with a blow from one of his brother officers in Athens, he bit his lips, folded arms across his breast and calmly exclaimed:

"Strike! But hear me!"

That was self control. That is the self mastery that is at the bottom of all sane, solid greatness. It is a kind of greatness that does not belong to Harry Thaw, however. He is more impulse than reason, more passion than principle. For Nature, in giving him a kind heart, forgot to give him a level head.

It is impossible to look carefully at Thaw without being convinced of the fact that he is of a very intense nature.

He has been described as being stolid, impassive, even indifferent in his attitude in the courtroom. But this is only on the surface. Down underneath is the fire which, being once fairly kindled, is quite uncontrollable.

Sometimes strong passion is coupled with an equally robust will power, which acts as a brake upon the impulse, and holds the person steady until the storm has passed.

There are times again when the brake is absent, and when the unchecked impulse drives madly on to ruin. It is clearly the case with Thaw.

BLINDED WHEN HE KILLED.

He killed Stanford White, not because he was at heart a murderer, but because for the time being the intensity of the thought of his wrong blinded—literally blinded—him to all other consideration save the one of striking down the perpetrator of the wrong.

Abnormal by nature, he was at the time he pulled that pistol on White, in a state of utter mental chaos, reason being relegated to the rear, while passion, unreason, insanity, held the field alone.

All of this I have seen as plainly as could be while looking at Thaw's face.

He is no more a murderer at heart than I am, or than the most gentle of the readers of the AMERICAN, but he is liable to be swept off his feet at any time by the storm of congenital passion which, when in full control, makes one the insane actor of the most terrible tragedy.

COUNSEL SUES 'POCO' BENNETT

Declaring that he has not been paid for his prosecution of George P. Bowler, and that he is owed other legal fees, Chester W. Ford has brought suit in the Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge against "Poco" Bennett, Harvard's "old clo'" man, for [illegible], to recover what he says is due him for services.

This includes about $1,200 for the work he did in the Bowler case.

The Bowler case had unusual features. Young Bowler, a Harvard student, was connected with prominent families in New York. It was alleged that he passed a note upon Bennett, indorsed with a relative's name.

When he was arrested a beautiful young woman came forward and offered to do everything in her power to secure bail for him. The bail kept climbing higher as new charges were made against the young man, and he declined the proffer of the young woman, thousands of dollars of whose money, it was claimed, he had lost in speculation.

Lawyer Ford prosecuted the case. Bowler is now serving time in Concord Reformatory.

HAVANA CIGAR MEN TO STRIKE

HAVANA, Jan. 10.—Representatives of the Cigarmakers' Union notified the independent manufacturers today that if the proposed reductions are made in their forces tomorrow night none of the workmen will report for work Monday morning.

The "Trust" has not announced any curtailment in production, and is consequently not affected, though sympathetic walkouts by its employes may involve it in the event of a strike against the independents.

ALL DAY'S NEWS IN AMERICAN'S 'FINAL' EDITION

"8 P. M." Issue Contains All the Events Featured in Next Morning Papers.

As usual the "Final" or "8 P. M." edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN last night contained all the principal news stories featured upon the first pages of the morning papers today as "latest news."

Once again it is shown that, when a man reads the final edition of the AMERICAN Thursday night he gets the cream of the news offered Friday morning to his neighbor, who is content with the morning papers.

For example: The principal telegraph news yesterday was about the Thaw trial, of course. Through its various afternoon editions the AMERICAN yesterday reported the progress of the trial from session to session, the selection or rejection of jurors and the final caution of Judge Dowling that there must be no unnecessary delay in swearing in the jury.

The "Swamp Murder" Case.

The daily developments in the "Swamp Murder" case, as the tragedy of Mrs. Lena Wallmore of Brooklyn is known, form another news topic of absorbing interest to the reading public. Considerable stress was laid by the morning papers on the fact that Fred W. Elliott, the Auburndale fireman wanted by the New Jersey police in connection with the case, consented to go over to New Jersey yesterday, and started for there on the 3 p. m. train, under escort of a New Jersey detective. This news was related in detail in the "8 p. m." edition of the BOSTON AMERICAN last night.

Another important news item of widespread interest was the wedding of Horace N. Marvin of Dover, Del., to Miss Flora Melina Swift of Brookline. This was printed in the AMERICAN'S "Final" edition yesterday.

Locally the public interest yesterday centered in the meeting of the McNary faction of the Democratic State Committee in the Quincy House yesterday afternoon. The "Final" told about the meeting, who was there, who stayed, who "bolted" and other pertinent political details, which were snapped up for "features" by the morning publications.

Mayor Hibbard's Descent

Some of the morning papers put up long "spread" stories about the descent of Mayor George A. Hibbard on the office of City Collector Garrett W. Scollard yesterday, and the consternation his unannounced visit created there. The facts in this case had been told the night before in the AMERICAN, and had already been read by patrons of the AMERICAN.

Another story given considerable space in the morning papers was the scoring of the telephone monopoly by Attorney Whitman at the hearing before the Highway Commission yesterday. That story was published by the AMERICAN last night.

The efforts of Chester Gillette, convicted of the murder of Grace (Billy) Brown, to escape the electric chair by a last desperate plea before the New York Court of Appeals and the fact that the last pathetic letter the murdered girl wrote before leaving home was to be a feature in the case again were told by the AMERICAN yesterday and retold by the morning papers today.

The latest sporting results and any quantity of other news items, some important, some less weighty, were published in the famous "8 P. M." yesterday.

The shadow of Mrs. Bradley's unpunished crime. Astonishing epidemic of murders all over the country since the woman who killed Senator Brown was set free. The lesson of the Bradley acse. See next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

HUSBAND AND SONS VAINLY SEEK WOMEN

Mrs. Sarah Fitzpatrick, Aged 54, Strangely Absent from Home Since Monday.

Mrs. Sarah Fitzpatrick, fifty-four years of age, wife of Joseph Fitzpatrick of No. 84 Romsey street, Dorchester, has been missing from her home since last Monday night and it is feared that she may have become mentally afflicted and taken her own life. The Dorchester police are searching for her.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick has lived in Romsey street with her husband and two sons, Joseph, Jr., and Francis, for six months. Prior to that time the family lived at No. 21 Dewey street, Roxbury.

Last Monday night she left home, saying that she was going to visit her daughter, Mrs. Mary Dunn, No. 39 Crescent avenue, Dorchester. This was about 7 o'clock.

When she did not return the husband went to his daughter's and found his wife had not been there. He visited the homes of several neighbors where she often visited, but no one had seen Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

Next day Mr. Fitzpatrick notified the police.

He and his sons and daughter have searched all over Dorchester and Roxbury, but no clue has been found.

Recently her relatives and friends have noticed that she had acted strangely at times and she had often spoken of how beautiful the water looked and how high the tides ran. They fear that she may have come to some harm.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick is five feet one inch in height. She weighs 160 pounds, has gray hair and a full fair face. She wore a blue waist and skirt and blue hat with black feather when last seen and a short black cloak.

RICH ASK TOO MUCH FROM POOR TENANTS

—ROSE PASTOR STOKES.

Well-Known Socialist Millionaire's Wife Declares Rent Strikers Do Not Demand Enough.

That the poor of Boston and New York ask too little of their landlords, in the rent strike now prevailing in both cities, is the declaration of Rose Pastor Stokes, the Socialist wife of the millionaire settlement worker, in an article written for the AMERICAN. She says the poor tenants starve themselves to create wealthy monopolists, who dazzle the world with riotous living on spoils wrung from the poor.

By Rose Pastor Stokes.

ROSE PASTOR STOKES.

The people are not making large enough demands. They should ask for a greater decrease in the rents than they are asking.

What is a reduction of $2 per month? To be sure, they can get a loaf of bread more a day, but a loaf of bread a day is merely a beggar's plea. And the landlords, the feudal barons of modern times, are glad to throw loaves of bread to those who need them and call for charity.

It is ridiculous that those who use and give values to the land should be compelled to pay a price to others who neither give value to it or use it themselves.

The people are starving and stinting themselves and their children in order that they may give their wealth to monopolists who set the world agape with their riotous living.

For you see, we are suffering from hard times. The people have been creating too much. You see, the trouble is the working people have made too many houses in the last few years, that is why they may not live in them; too many shoes, therefore can't wear them; too much clothing, therefore must go unclad; too many foodstuffs, therefore must go hungry.

That is why we have such a great system under which when makers of wealth go hungry the takers of wealth step forth and play that they are bountiful.

How future generations will wonder at our stupidity!

Whatever the outcome of the fight, just the fight in itself must result in great good. It makes them conscious of the common interests of their class, this fighting together.

Personally, I feel that the time is now, and will continue to be, when pressing the people further, or not easing up where they are already pressed too far, as in the case of the present fight, is a dangerous thing.

The foolish rich are unwilling to read the signs of the times, though Socialism and Socialists implore the peaceful and rapid evolution; they seem set upon bringing about nothing but revolution.

RENT STRIKE AIDED BY ALL NATIONALITIES

Movement Started by Jews Spreads All Through Boston's Tenement District.

WOMEN FORM COMMITTEE

Cheering reports from every part of the city are being daily received by the executive committee of the Anti-High Rent League. The organizing of the tenants is being actively pushed forward, and to aid in the work steps were taken last night to form a woman's committee.

Stories of threats by landlords to evict such tenants as take part in the rent strike are numerous, but in every case this has but served to strengthen the determination of the rent payers.

Final arrangements for the first two mass meetings have been made, and a conference of delegates from various Jewish unions and societies has been arranged for next Wednesday night. A committee of ten to visit the Jewish organizations and to urge them to take part in the movement has been chosen.

Every Rent-Payer Enrolled

"The plans agreed upon last night," said Louis Lasker, the secretary of the executive committee, "leave no doubt that within a short time every rent payer in the Boston Jewish quarter will be enrolled in the movement. We have taken care to divest the latter of every political significance. We want to bring the rents to a normal level, and we will do everything in our power to get all right-minded and justice-loving people on our side.

"We do not propose to confine our work to Jews alone. All other nationalities composing the population of Boston will be appealed to, and we have already received indications that these appeals will not be in vain."

Mass Meeting in Chelsea.

Woman speakers will appear at the mass meetings arranged by the league. To-night takes place a meeting of tenants in Chelsea under the auspices of the local branch of the Anti-High Rent League, which was organized last night, and the officers of which are Simon Katzeff and Jack London. The meeting will take place at No. 206 Broadway.

A legal bureau to aid such tenants as may be illegally evicted has been formed, with Attorneys Henry A. Koch and Henry Kahn at the head of it, and steps are to be taken at once to bring suit against the landlord who had the dispossess notice served on Mrs. Harry Dubinsky, it being claimed that her rent was paid at the time when she was threatened with eviction.

To-morrow night is held the first Boston mass meeting in the cause of lower rents. It will take place at No. 13 Poplar street.

1605 CHILDREN PROVIDED FOR

One thousand six hundred and five children were cared for in the [illegible] Destitute Children [illegible], according to Superintendent [illegible] report, presented at the annual meeting of the corporation last night. [illegible] hundred and eight children were [illegible], 748 were restored to [illegible] in the home now.

The following officers were elected: President, John P. [illegible]; vice-president, Bernard S. McNulty; [illegible], John A. Bruen; secretary, William J. [illegible]; executive committee, Patrick J. [illegible], John H. Dunn, Dennis F. Sheehan. The Most Rev. Archbishop O'Connell was elected honorary president.

DOHERTY QUITS COUNCIL FIGHT

Chances for electing a Democratic president of the Common Council were brightened by the withdrawal of Thomas J. Doherty of Ward 2 in favor of [illegible] P. McCullough of Ward 13. Through Doherty's withdrawal last night McCullough's vote jumped from thirteen on the first ballot to twenty on the second.

Six Democrats voted for Hatton of Ward 3 on both ballots last night. Santosuosso of Ward 6 got four votes on the second ballot, and F. F. O'Bolen of Ward 14 one. Half a dozen others got two and one each. Bagley of Ward 1 had the solid Republican vote of twenty-eight, one Republican being absent.

PALLIUM HAS ARRIVED HERE

The pallium, the official insignia of an archbishop, which was applied for and granted at the recent public consistory at the Vatican for Archbishop William H. O'Connell, who arrived here from Rome yesterday.

The pallium is a woolen stole and is the most important part of an archbishop's vestments. It is worn about the neck. The bestowal of the pallium is a ceremony of much magnificence and splendor.

Archbishop O'Connell has announced that the ceremony will take place in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross on Wednesday morning, January 29, at 10 o'clock, and the primate of the church in the United States, Cardinal Gibbons, will officiate.

DOGS ATTACK LITTLE BOY

BOWDOINHAM, Me., Jan. 10.—While [illegible] Main street the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown was nearly killed by four dogs, who sprang upon the child, growling and barking, and biting him so severely that the little fellow screamed with pain.

Expressman G. F. Dobson, who was driving an express team, witnessed the scene and ran to the aid of the child. It was not until he had made vigorous use of the whip that the dogs went away.

"Five minutes more and the child would have been literally eaten by the dogs," he said. The boy will live, but it will be some time before he recovers from his wounds.

MONEY SHARKS LEAGUED TO FLEECE POOR VICTIMS

INTRICATE SYSTEM ENABLES THEM TO PERFECT THEIR EXTORTION PLANS.

The intricate system by which Boston "money sharks" entangle their victims so tightly that there is little or no hope of release by transferring loans to other offices with which they are in league, is shown by the case of Matthew Quirk, who has assigned his wages to twelve different concerns in the past four years.

Quirk, who until recently worked at the South Station, was sued by Frederick B. Robinson, a money lender, for a debt of $18. The action revealed the fact that his wages had been assigned to the following other firms: Bankers' Investment Company, City Loan Company, George F. Washburn, National Loan Company, Hub Loan Company, Franklin Loan Company, Colonial Loan Company, Federal Investment Company, Tremont Loan Company, H. P. Budding and Globe Loan Company.

The loan companies do not loan funds to anyone without first knowing his rating. They have a protective association, and as soon as a person applies for a loan this association notifies all the other members in the city. It is evident, therefore, that in each of the above loans the company was aware of the other dealings.

Escape Well Nigh Impossible.

Once a borrower gets in the toils of several loan concerns it is practically impossible to escape. They have a system of espionage, and the instant he gets a job an agent of some "money shark" pounces down on the office with an assignment of wages.

The victim is unable to meet the demands of all, and through frequent renewals, with additional charges for making out new papers and serving notices, his indebtedness constantly increases, doubles or even trebles the original amount secured.

Not Licensed as Broker.

Matthew Quirk is only one of hundreds ensnared in this way. He is seeking some escape from the net, and through Attorney William N. Osgood has filed an answer to the suit of Robinson. The defence holds that the note given by Quirk for $18.24 is illegal, void and without consideration, on the following grounds:

That the plaintiff was not licensed as a small loan broker by the police board, but was engaged in the business of making small loans at a rate of interest greater than 12 per cent.

Under the police rules, in accordance with the statutes, the plaintiff was prohibited from charging for expenses upon a renewal of any loan; that said note was but one of many renewals of an original loan, upon which sufficient money has already been paid; that, therefore, the defendant actually owes nothing.

Another instance of several wage assignments given by the same borrower is found in the suit which was brought by the Columbia Loan Company against the city of Boston, Malachi L. Jennings, and John P. Noonan, a Common Councilman in 1905-06.

Noonan had assigned his salary of $300 as Councilman to the Columbia Loan Company. The City Treasurer refused to honor an order for his 1906 salary, as the money was also claimed by Attorney Jennings, by H. B. Budding, another loan broker, and on two previous assignments to the Columbia. The latter proved its claim and was awarded the money.

The following letter, is one of scores received by the BOSTON AMERICAN protesting against the charges of loan brokers:

> Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
>
> I am one of the victims of the "money sharks." I borrowed $31.50 from the Franklin Loan Company, for which I was asked to pay $9.80 per month for five months, making $49, besides $1 for making the loan. This will total just $50. Is the interest charged legal? They took an assignment of my wages.
>
> Signed, VICTIM.

If the figures stated are accurate, the writer is being charged an excessive rate. The loan company is entitled to a charge of not more than $3 for making the loan, and interest at 3 per cent. a month, or 24 per cent. a year. If the loan is paid inside of six months the company may legally charge you six months' interest. Two per cent. a month on $30 would amount to 60 cents each month, or $3.60 for six months. With $3 charge added, the total charges would be $6.60, making the sum due if paid in five, or six months, $36.60 on a loan of $30.—Editor AMERICAN.

DOCTOR WEDS MOTHER-IN-LAW

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Dr. Horace Newall Marvin of Dover, Del., whose little son was supposed to have been kidnapped last March, was married in this city to Mrs. Flora Melina Thornton Swift, his mother-in-law, and the grandmother of the boy who was so long missing.

Dr. Marvin came to New York from Dover and Mrs. Swift from her home in Brookline, Mass. They met at the Grand Central Station and reached City Clerk Scully's office in the City Hall shortly before 11 o'clock.

They filled out the required blanks in the city clerk's office without delay. Dr. Marvin gave his age as sixty-two years, his occupation as a farmer and physician, and stated that it was his third marriage. Flora Melina Swift was the way the bride gave her name. She admitted sixty years and said that her first husband was dead.

Armed with the licenses, they went at once to the residence of the Rev. Dr. Houghton, pastor of the Little Church Around the Corner, at No. 11 East Twenty-ninth street, where they were married shortly before noon.

HERO, AGED 64, GIVES LIFE TO SAVE WOMAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—In their sorrow there will come to his children the consolation that Frank C. McBreen died a hero, at a time in life when most men are thinking only of self-preservation. Sixty-four years old, with a life of ease before him, McBreen, a wealthy contractor, gave his life to save a woman he never had seen before.

Mr. McBreen lived at the Triangle Hotel, at the junction of Jamaica and Myrtle avenues, Richmond Hill. He had just crossed the track of the Long Island railroad near there, last evening, when he heard a man shout: "That woman will be killed."

On the track he saw a middle-aged woman who had run around the gates after they had been closed for the Sag Harbor express bound for Long Island City. Its headlight was only a hundred yards away.

Without an instant's hesitation the old man vaulted the fence like a boy. Edward Duffy, a young man of No. 2063 Fulton street, did the same. The pair caught the woman, who in her confusion had fallen. They pulled her from the tracks a few seconds before the train whizzed by. The younger man had the woman with one hand and clung to the fence with the other.

McBreen did not hold to the fence and the suction pulled him beneath the wheels of the first car.

The five coaches passed over his body.

Stupendous Purchase

We have purchased from Alsberg, Pursch & Co., 20 and 22 Waverly Place, New York, their entire winter stock of suits and overcoats at sixty cents on the dollar. Nothing short of the extraordinary conditions of the money market today could warrant such utter disregard of value as this purchase entails. The price we paid was amazingly small, but the bargains it enables us to give are amazingly big—positively the greatest on record.

The important thing to keep in mind is the fact that this is not an ordinary sale. These suits and overcoats were not made up for a special sale at cut prices, but are thoroughly representative garments from one of New York's representative makers. Notwithstanding the price in each instance barely covers the cost of materials alone, our sweeping guarantee, "Your money back if you want it," stands behind every sale.

Don't Fail to Respect Gray Hairs

By Beatrice Fairfax

THE other day while riding in a Huntington avenue car my attention was attracted to a mother and daughter who got on after I did.

The mother was a substantial, motherly looking woman of about fifty; the daughter, pert and over-dressed, appeared to be about eighteen.

There was one vacant seat in the car, and the daughter took it, leaving her mother to hang on to the strap as best she might.

Several people looked their surprise and disgust, and finally an elderly man rose and offered his seat to the mother.

Which Is to Blame?

IT is hard to tell which is more to blame in a case of that kind, the mother or daughter.

If the latter were not thoroughly spoiled she would never dream of showing so little deference to any older person, let alone her mother.

To spoil a child by bringing it up as though its wishes and moods were the most important things in the world is the height of unkindness.

The spoiled child has many sharp corners to knock against when she goes out into the world.

Her parents have given her her own way in everything, but other people merely look on her as a spoiled, selfish girl and rather enjoy teaching her a lesson.

If the girl has a really fine nature, it is hard to spoil her, but if she is naturally inclined toward selfishness, the chances are that she will be utterly self-opinionated and spoiled.

If the girl in the car could have known what others were thinking of her I am quite sure that she would not have taken the seat and allowed her mother to stand.

Stamps a Girl

THERE is nothing that so stamps a girl as selfish and ill-bred as lack of respect to older people.

When you interrupt an older person in the middle of a sentence you are rude and disrespectful. When you take the most comfortable chair in the room you are selfish and thoughtless.

When you go out with your mother your chief duty is to see that she is comfortable.

Don't allow her to carry the parcels that your young arms are much better fitted to carry.

Don't rush on and off the car before her. Wait and see that she is not being pushed and jostled by some man who ought to know better.

The chief criticism that foreigners make in regard to the young people in this country is their lack of courtesy toward their elders.

Take that to heart, young people. The fault can be very easily cured. All it needs is thoughtfulness and kindliness.

Begin now and treat your elders in the way you would like to be treated if you were old.

SOME SAFE AND CERTAIN WAYS OF WINNING BASHFUL YOUNG MR. TIMID

BY DOROTHY DIX

GRANTING women the right to propose, how should they go about it?

This is an interesting question, even a momentous question, now that it is leap year, when tradition already assigns to the fair sex the privilege of taking the initiative in love making.

Unfortunately it is always easier to advance a theory than it is to practically apply it. Undoubtedly the woman who is the Columbus of her sex, and who starts out to discover a new northwest passage to a man's heart instead of waiting for him to discover her, will find many difficulties.

Love making is as yet an unclassified science. There is no set of rules to guide one, and about the only thing that a woman would have to go by in popping the question would be the awful warning of the bungling way in which men do it.

Flattery Wins

Of course, there are certain obvious methods that suggest themselves at once.

If, for instance, a girl has set her heart upon a worthy young fellow, but one who had a bad case of the swellhead, as many most estimable young men have, she might seize some propitious moment when he had paused to take breath in discoursing about himself and his affairs, to tell him that he filled her beau ideal of all that a man should be; that she loved him; that she adored him and asked nothing else of fate than the privilege of burning incense at his feet for the balance of her life.

In nine cases out of ten this would fetch him on the spot, and he would fall on her neck and promise to be hers. In the tenth case he might prove obdurate. He might say "no," that he would be a brother to her, but could be no more.

All, then, that the maiden would have to do would be to simply sit down and weep. No conceited man can resist the flattery of a woman who cries because she cannot get him. It shows such judgment in her, such taste, such appreciation, that he melts on the spot, and all that would be left would be for the girl to send out the wedding cards.

Get Him in a Corner

The bashful man would, of course, have to be handled differently. It takes patience and persistence to catch a timid man, because he has to be stealthily stalked to his lair, and it has to be done so subtly that he does not perceive it.

The main thing that the woman who woos a bashful man would have to guard against would be the folly of proposing to him by letter. That would give him a chance to refuse, of which he would undoubtedly avail himself, for he can be bold as brass and as hard as adamant with a hundred or two miles, or even a building with a double set of elevators in it, between him and the lady.

Face to face with her, however, the matter is different, and so her cue is to wait the psychological moment when she has got him separated from the balance of the herd in a ballroom or one corner of a conservatory, and then pop the question before he can duck. Sheer terror will force him to surrender.

For a Business Man

On the other hand, probably the best way to propose to a busy business man will be by letter. Very brief and concise, you know, and dealing purely with the facts in the case. You can imagine Mr. Blank, head of the large wholesale and retail grocery house of Blank & Co., turning a favorable eye on a neat, typewritten document that stated:

"Dear Mr. Blank—For some time I have been observing you with more than usual interest, and for the past six months have been convinced that my happiness consists in forming a life partnership with you.

"My assets comprise a heart full of love for you, good health, good looks, an A1 social position, and a thorough working knowledge of how to run a house and make home sweet home.

"I would be willing to put all these into the new firm, and so, even if you have never hitherto considered taking in a partner, I ask for a ninety-day option on your heart and hand, while I try to demonstrate to you that the arrangement that I propose will be to our mutual advantage.

"Hoping for a favorable reply, I am
"Yours very truly,
"MARY JONES."

Of course Mr. Blank really may never have thought of Mary Jones before, and if she had called in person the office boy who sits without the door of the senior partner and asks every newcomer, "Wot's yo' name an' business?" would never have let her in, or if she did get in the business man might have turned down her application because he was in a grouch.

But the letter that he can take to his club and consider over a cigar and a cocktail and a good dinner will have opportunity to soak into the right place. Its brevity, its lack of frills, its very coming to the point at the first dash out of the box, will be almost sure to impress him so favorably that he will dictate an affirmative reply to it next day.

Stage Effects Help

If a man is fond of creature comforts—and what man is not?—what better way can a woman choose to a man's heart than by the domestic route?

Let her set a little table for two, with a dainty meal that would tickle the palate of even an anchorite. Let the room be just the proper degree of delicious warmth. Let the lights be shaded just so, the arrangement of every chair and book and paper bespeaking the touch of a woman who is a home maker and a man spoiler. The stage scene gets in its work, and the woman speaks:

"Mr. Smith—John. May I call you Johnny? I have noticed that you have not looked very well of late—that you were pale and had a hungry and dyspeptic look, and my heart bled for you.

"My poor boy, let me take you away from your cruel landlady. Let me protect you from the impositions of your wash woman. Let me stand between you and the burnt beefsteaks and the watery potatoes of the quick lunch house, and the temptation of restaurant mince pie.

"Marry me, and I will devote my life to making you comfortable, and seeing that your buttons are always on, and your trousers creased. I ask no other happiness than ministering to your wants."

Could Find a Way

Could any man with a soul, or a heart, or even a stomach resist a proposal like that? Not one! And to think that there are plenty of women who are ready to do that much for men who never notice them!

But why suggest formulas for popping the question? Be sure that if women had the right to propose, love would teach them the way to do it, and that marriage would no longer be a failure, but a glad, sweet song.

For every woman would have the kind of a husband she wanted, and would spend her time petting and adoring him. And we all know how amiable a man can be when nobody ruffles him. He smiles and purrs like a Cheshire cat, whose fur is being rubbed the right way.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

HAIR GROWER

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Would you kindly tell what is the best hair growing remedy? I wrote to you once before, but did not see my answer in the paper. I would like something that would grow my hair rapidly, as I am eighteen years old and my hair is only six inches long.
WORRIED.

ADVICE as to hair growing has been published since the date of your first letter, but as you have evidently not seen it I repeat the directions: Massage the scalp gently with vaseline, a few drops only, every night, wiping off the surplus with soft cheesecloth so that the hair may not become greasy. When absolutely necessary shampoo the hair in pure castile soap and water, making a strong solution by heating the shaved soap with a little water until a jelly is obtained. Rinse thoroughly in several waters and dry by gently rubbing in the sun if possible. The night before shampooing give the scalp a good massaging with coal oil and tie it up over night. If your health is not as it should be, consult a physician, for nothing so quickly injures the growth of the hair as impaired health.

MAKING CREAM

DEAR PROFESSOR:
I would like to have you tell me how to mix ingredients of cleansing cream, containing rose water, sweet almond oil and white wax. Do you heat the wax? Also, I would like to know how to clear my face, which has a good many red spots left from pimples. They are not scars, but seem to be parts of the skin in which there is no circulation.
E. E. G.

TAKE equal parts of almond oil and rose water, to which is added half the quantity of white wax. Melt the oil and the wax together and pour in the rose water, beating all the while until the mixture is nearly cold. Hot olive oil is good to use for eradicating the red spots. It softens up the cuticle and assists the blood in resuming its circulation through the new skin which has been formed over the injured spot.

ROSE COLD CREAM

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you kindly give me a formula for a good cold cream, something that will have a nice odor? Also tell me how to prepare it and whether or not I have to heat it.
SHEBOYGAN.

THE following rose cream will probably be what you wish: Take of white wax one ounce; spermaceti two ounces and almond oil half a pint. Melt together by gentle heat and add three ounces of glycerin with twelve drops of attar of roses, beating until nearly cold. This makes an excellent cream and the odor is delightful.

Mothers of Great Men in History

BY THOMAS B. GREGORY

In this, the nineteenth in his series of articles on "Mothers of Men Who Made History," the Rev. Thomas B. Gregory reviews the life of the mother of Andrew Jackson.

OLD Froissart never told a more thrilling romance than the one which, long after the great chronicler's death, was to be revealed to the world in the life and fortunes of Andrew Jackson.

The posthumous child, born in the Carolina backwoods in the midst of poverty and all its privations, was to write his name on history's page so large and legible that all the world should read it, and read it forever!

Andrew Jackson had no pedigree. No coat of arms looked down on him from the walls of the wilderness cabin in which he first saw the light.

A "distinguished Virginia lady" once tried to find a pedigree for the old General, but after the most praiseworthy effort she gave it up as a fruitless task. The General himself laughingly advised her to quit, assuring her that, in his humble judgment, she would make nothing out of it.

But while Andrew Jackson had no family escutcheon, he had that which was a great deal better—a sensible, high-minded, affectionate mother, who was to set before him the example and give him the advice which were of more value than money or pedigree.

Had Common Sense

ELIZABETH HUTCHINSON, daughter of the Carrickfergus linen draper, was a woman of great common sense and discretion and of unfaltering devotion to her family.

Mrs. Jackson's great-heartedness is shown in the manner of her death. It was in the Fall of 1781, and hundreds of American prisoners were confined on board the British hulks in Charleston Harbor. Through the woods, 170 miles, Mrs. Jackson, in the company of some half dozen other philanthropic women of the settlement, made her way on horseback to the scene of her countrymen's sufferings, and while engaged in this mission of mercy the good woman contracted the fever which killed her.

At the time of his mother's death Jackson was fifteen years old. The loss of his mother came near breaking his heart; nor was his sorrow lightened when, after a futile attempt to find his mother's grave, he was forced to come away leaving her resting place "unknown."

On the fifteenth of March, 1815, the anniversary of his birth, as Jackson was disbanding the army with which he had won the famous battle of New Orleans, he said to some members of his military family:

Pays His Tribute

"Gentlemen, how I wish my mother could have lived to see this day. There never was a woman like her. She was as gentle as a dove and as brave as a lioness.

"Almost her last words to me, when about to start for Charleston on the errand of mercy that cost her her life, were: 'Andrew, if I should not see you again, I want you to remember and treasure up some of the things I have already said to you. In this world you will have to make your own way. To do that you must have friends. You can make friends by being honest, and you can keep them by being steadfast; you must keep in mind the fact that friends worth having will, in the long run, expect as much from you as you get from them.

"'To forget an obligation or to be ungrateful for a kindness is a base crime—not merely a fault, but an actual crime. Men guilty of it must sooner or later suffer for the penalty. In personal conduct be polite but never obsequious. No one will respect you unless you respect yourself. Avoid quarrels as long as you can without yielding to imposition, but sustain your manhood always.'"

Did ever mother give son nobler or more sensible advice?

Do we not see in these parting words of his mother the very principles that made Andrew Jackson the man that he was, and that enabled him to carve out for himself his extraordinary fortune?

"AN AMBITIOUS MAN"

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

CHAPTER XI.

Copyright by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.
[illegible] 1908 by American-Journal-Examiner.

THE rector of St. Blank's Church dined at the Cheney table or down in the Cheney establishment every week, beside which there were always one or two confidential chats with the feminine Cheneys in the parsonage on matters pertaining to the welfare of the church, and occasionally on the welfare of humanity.

That Alice Cheney had conceived a sudden and consuming passion for the handsome and brilliant rector of St. Blank's, both her mother and the Baroness knew, and both were doing all in their power to further the girl's hopes.

While Alice resembled her mother in appearance and disposition, propensities and impulses occasionally exhibited themselves which spoke of paternal inheritance. She had her father's strongly emotional nature, with her mother's stubbornness; and Preston Cheney's romantic tendencies were repeated in his daughter, without his reasoning powers.

Added to her father's lack of self-control in any strife with his passions, Alice possessed her mother's hysterical nerves. In fact, the unfortunate child inherited the weaknesses and faults of both parents, without any of their redeeming virtues.

The passion which had sprung to life in her breast for the young rector was as strong and unreasoning as the infatuation which her father had once experienced for Bessie Dumont; but instead of struggling against the feeling as her father had at least attempted to do, she dwelt upon it with all the mulish persistency which her mother exhibited in small matters, and luxuriated in romantic dreams of the future.

Mabel was wholly unable to comprehend the depth or violence of her daughter's feelings, but she realized the fact that Alice had set her mind on winning Arthur Stuart for a husband, and she quite approved of the idea, and saw no reason why it should not succeed.

She herself had won Preston Cheney away from all rivals for his favor, and Alice ought to be able to do the same with Arthur, after all the money which had been expended upon her wardrobe. Senator Cheney's daughter and Judge Lawrence's granddaughter surely was a prize for any man to win as a wife.

The Baroness, however, reviewed the situation with more concern of mind. She realized that Alice was destitute of beauty and charm, and that Arthur Emerson Stuart (it would have been considered a case of high treason to speak of the rector of St. Blank's without using his three names) was independent in the matter of fortune, and so dowered with nature's best gifts that he could have almost any woman for the asking when he should desire.

But the Baroness believed much in propinquity; and she brought the rector and Alice together as often as possible, and coached the girl in coquettish arts when alone with her, and credited her with witticisms and bon mots which she never uttered, when talking of her to the young rector.

"If only I could give Alice the benefit of my past career," the Baroness would say to herself at times, "I know so well how to manage men! but what use is my knowledge to me now that I am old? Alice is young, and even without beauty she could do so much if she only understood the art of masculine seduction. But then it is a gift, not an acquired art, and Alice was not born with the gift."

Woman's Reasonings

While Mabel and Alice had been centering their thoughts and attentions on the rector the Baroness had not forgotten the rector's mother. She knew the very strong affection which existed between the two, and she had discovered that the leading desire of the young man's heart was to make his mother happy.

With her wide knowledge of human nature, she had not been long in discerning the fact that it was not because of his own religious convictions that the rector had chosen the calling, but to carry out the lifelong wishes of his beloved mother.

Therefore she reasoned wisely that Arthur would be greatly influenced by his mother in his choice of a wife; and the Baroness brought all her vast battery of fascination to bear on Mrs. Stuart and succeeded in making that lady her devoted friend.

The widow of Judge Lawrence was still an imposing and impressive figure wherever she went. She exhaled that peculiar mental aroma which hangs ever about a woman who has dealt deeply and widely in affairs of the heart. It is to the spiritual senses what musk is to the physical; and while it may often repulse, it sometimes attracts, and never fails to be noticed.

About the Baroness' mouth were hard lines, and the expression of her eyes was not kind or tender; yet she was everywhere conceded to be a universally handsome and attractive woman. Quiet and tasteful in her dressing, she did not accentuate the ravages of time by any mistaken frivolities of toilet, as so many faded coquettes have done, but wisely suited her vestments to her appearance, as the withering branch clothes itself in russet leaves when the fresh sap ceases to course through its veins.

New York City is a vast sepulcher of "past careers," and the adventurous life of the Baroness was quietly buried there with that of many another woman.

In the mad whirl of life there is small danger that any of these skeletons will rise to view, unless the woman permits herself to strive for eminence either socially or in the world of art.

Still Safe

While the Cheneys were known to be wealthy, and the Senator had achieved political position, there was nothing in their situation to challenge the jealousy of their associates.

They moved in one of the many circles of cultured and agreeable people, which, despite the mandate of a McAllister, form a varied and delightful society in the metropolis; they entertained in an unostentatious manner, and there was nothing in their personality to incite envy or jealousy. Therefore the career of the Baroness had not been unearthed.

Some foods have the same effect on the bowels as Cascarets. But one must select the foods and that's difficult. It's easier to take Cascarets.

Here is one way to keep cheerful:
Live out doors and exercise in plenty. Eat coarse food, much fruit, many green vegetables.
Here is the other way:
Take a Cascaret when you need it. That will supply, in a gentle and natural way, the same laxative effect on the bowels.

Nobody questions that the first way is best.
So would it be best, for much the same reason, to do all of our reading by sunlight.
But most of us are compelled to choose a second best way.
And that way is Cascarets.
No other laxative acts so nearly as proper living would act on the bowels.

The harsh castor oil and salts, of pills and cathartics, are over.
What they did artificially, is now done by Cascarets gently.
The right way is to take a Cascaret when you need it. Carry a box in your pocket. Ward off those dull feelings, those headaches, before they fairly get started.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and

FRIENDS FEAR JACK LONDON AND WIFE LOST

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 10.—The alarm of friends of Jack London, the author, over his failure to arrive at the Marquesas Islands, which he was expected to reach early in December, is increasing. London left Hilo, Hawaii, October 7, last, in his little boat, the Snark, for Marquesas, and is about a month overdue.

It is supposed that the Snark, which is equipped with a gasoline engine, is drifting about as a result of injury to her machinery. Mrs. London, two friends and a small crew are with the vessel.

The steamer Mariposa is due here January 25 from La Hi, Tahiti, and it is hoped that she will bring news of the party.

CUT RATE TO ENGLAND TO $20

Because of the inauguration of a rate war between the Cunard and White Star Lines, the cost of a steerage passage to England has been cut to $20 by the White Star Line, and it is stated that this reduction will probably be met by the Cunard Line today.

It is said that the White Star Line began the cutting because the Cunard Line would not advance the steerage rates on the steamers Lusitania and Mauretania. The White Star people were of the opinion that the rate should at least be the same as that demanded on the best steamers of its own.

[illegible] the White Star line reduced its rate from this port on all tickets to Ireland, England and Scandinavian points [illegible], and the same reduction was made in the prepaid tickets from England to Boston.

The Cunard met the reduction yesterday. Last evening the White Star made a further reduction of $2.75 on outward tickets, which brought the steerage rate down to $20. The rate from Liverpool by the White Star steamer Cymric was $30, and it is now $26.25. The rate from Boston was reduced from $27.50 to $20.

Up to the present time the saloon rates remain the same, but the second cabin rate on the White Star line has been reduced, and it would not be surprising if the first cabin tariff was also lowered.

ONE DEAD, SIX HURT IN TRAIN COLLISION

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—One man was killed and six injured when an inbound and outbound Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train met on the Pennsylvania tracks at Kenzie and Leavitt streets today. The injured were taken to hospitals in patrol wagons.

PREMIUM ROOM RAID NETS ROBBERS $1,200

WATERVILLE, Me., Jan. 10.—Thieves who had evidently hidden in the building ransacked the premium room of the Sawyer Publishing Company and took watches, knives and rings to the value of about $1,200. About 1,000 pieces were taken.

POLICE RENEW LOST CHILDREN SEARCH TO-DAY

BROCKTON, Jan. 10.—Though she has been diligently at work trying to locate the [illegible] person who called her on the telephone a few days ago and told her that Mrs. Ball, mother of the missing Ball children, had offered her a sum of money to keep the children, Miss Annie L. Ridgeway, the phone operator, has been unable to get any definite clue as to her whereabouts.

While the search for the children has been temporarily abandoned, the search will again be taken up today by Inspector Salmon of the State police, who has had charge of the case since the first day.

He has [illegible] a new theory that the woman left the children in the woods north of [illegible] street, Avon. These woods have not been searched as thoroughly as the woods toward the south, and on the strength of this he will organize a new searching party and scour the woods in that section.

John Ball, the father of the children, says that he feels the children are dead, while Inspector [illegible] says the children are dead.

The police confess that they have made no progress toward locating the whereabouts of the children.

RETIRES FROM MILITIA.

LOWELL, Jan. 10.—First Lieutenant Arthur D. [illegible] of Company K, Sixth Regiment, M. V. M., one of the most popular officers in the regiment, retired from the militia today, after nine years' service.

NEW YORKERS BACK MURPHY TO PUT IT OVER PACKY AT ARMORY A. A. TUESDAY

Life down at Mike [illegible] farm at Highland Lake for Packy McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, is [illegible] the play, in his preparation for Tommy Murphy in their bout at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night. [illegible]

Packey Is Confident.

Bubbling over with confidence, Packy goes about his training as if he already had the match won from Murphy. There never was a boxer who visited this section who was so sure that he could not lose. He has never been defeated in his two score fights [illegible]

He got lost on the road the first day he went out and wandered around the country and covered about twenty miles before he found his way back to Highland Lake.

"Some people have the opinion that I am strictly a fighter without any regard to [illegible]," said Packy, talking about his style of boxing. [illegible]

Watching McFarland at work it is evident that he is a terrific body puncher and is hard to reach, as he keeps covered up as he wades in with his head lowered. Like Battling Nelson, McFarland shows the same [illegible] when he gets warmed up to the fray and is quick as lightning to see an opening and is every bit as active as that other cyclonic fighter from the West, Bill Papke.

Gotham Backs Murphy.

The contest is the sole topic of conversation in New York sporting circles, and the Manhattanites are loyally backing their favorite, Tommy Murphy.

Some of the best judges in Gotham have looked Murphy over in his training stunts, and they contend that if McFarland can beat Murphy that he must be a marvel. Tommy is down in weight and he is training more faithfully than he has ever done before.

Two fast and interesting eight round bouts were arranged yesterday to precede the main bout. In the opener Jimmy Sullivan and Young Sullivan of Roxbury will meet, while in the other bout Jackie Wilsons of Cambridge will hook up with Fred Chisholm of Everett.

CHELSEA CLUB MEMBERS LOOK FOR STAR BOUT

Since Kid Goodman and Baldwin were announced to clash in Chelsea interest in the pair has taken a tremendous jump, and the rush of members to the club house and office yesterday indicated that the match was well considered by the fans and members of the club.

Each has a reputation for furnishing the right sort of action when within the roped square, and everyone in the vicinity that has seen either exhibit is cognizant of the fact that when they clash next Monday night a fireless contest will be waged.

The announcement yesterday that the members who lost their cards would have a great deal of difficulty [illegible]

The meeting between Billy Connolly and Denny Ryan is being widely discussed in Cambridge, and the followers of each [illegible]

CUTLER'S BIG RUN.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 10.—Albert Cutler of Boston won the billiard game with Willie Hoppe by making a run of 101. The score was: Cutler, 300; Hoppe, 232. Hoppe won in the afternoon, 400 to 396.

HARVARD MAY DROP INDIANS FOR TIGERS

At a meeting of the committee to select a football coach for Harvard next season the matter was thoroughly discussed, but no decision reached.

As was announced yesterday, the new committee comprises seven men: G. B. Fearing, '93; W. F. Garcelon, L. '95; P. D. Haughton, '99; J. W. Farley, '99; A. Marshall, L. '01, and M. L. Newhall, '08, and Captain Francis Burr.

At present there are four men who are being seriously considered for the position of head coach at Harvard next Fall: Joshua Crane, last year's coach; Dave Campbell, Percy Haughton and Reggie Brown. Possibly some other man not included in this list will be chosen as coach, but this seems unlikely.

Over in Cambridge the general feeling is that Crane will again be the man.

Harvard students all hope a game will be arranged with Princeton next season.

The difficulty which confronts the Harvard management is the impossibility of adding the Princeton game to the schedule which Harvard has been carrying several years. [illegible]

If the athletic committee agrees to allow Harvard to play the Tigers, the game doubtless will take the place of the Indian game. [illegible] it is believed that a game with Princeton will be acceptable to the athletic committee if substituted for the Carlisle game.

DELMONT AND WAGNER DRAW

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 10.—Al Delmont of Medford and Joe Wagner of New York put up a slashing good fifteen-round bout here and the referee very wisely called it a draw.

Delmont forced the pace from the start, outpointed Wagner in the majority of the first twelve rounds, and scored a knockdown in the thirteenth, but Wagner tore into the Medford boy in the last two rounds and wore him down by his rough and tumble work.

FIVE KNOCKOUTS IN SLOWTOWN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—Of the seven bouts at the Broadway A. C., five ended in knockouts.

The windup brought together Jack Blackburn and George Gunther, of Australia, and it went the limit of six rounds. Gunther was the aggressor the greater part of the time, but Blackburn used his cleverness to good effect and blocked many hard swings aimed at his jaw and body and got back at the Australian with hard hooks and jabs. Neither man was in distress at any stage. In the last round Gunther staggered Blackburn with a swing on the jaw.

TAYLOR AFTER GRAY.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—John I. Taylor of the Boston Red Sox may land Dollie Gray, the crack southpaw of the local team. At present Manager Berry sets too high a price on his twirler, but if he will get down to earth a deal may be made.

PARKER TO MEET KING.

The fourth game of the Class A billiard tournament at the Hub Billiard Parlor between Van Dyke and Pope was won by the former by a score of 300 to 252. To-night Harry Parker and Dr. King will meet.

NAVIN TIGERS' PRESIDENT.

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—Secretary Frank Navin was made president of the Detroit American League baseball club, William Yawkey, backer of the champions, retiring from that position.

BRESNAHAN AGAIN A GIANT.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Roger Bresnahan is again a Giant. Manager McGraw stopped off here on his way West and in a few minutes had signed the clever backstop.

BRADLEY LOSES BOUT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Jim Stewart, who was defeated by Fred Bradley of Boston in his first experience in the ring, stopped Bradley in the third round, the referee stopping the bout. In a six-round bout George Hoey outpointed Young Gaurand and Blink McCloskey fought a draw with Kid Griffo.

AMERICAS BEATS GOTCH.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10.—Frank Gotch failed to throw Americus (Gus Schoenlein), the Baltimore heavyweight wrestler, two falls in one hour here. Americus weighed 185 pounds and Gotch 200 pounds. Gotch won the only fall in 41 minutes, and Americus was awarded the bout.

HARVARD TEAM OFF TO-DAY.

In fine shape to meet Canadians in a championship hockey game to-morrow night, the Harvard players will leave to-day for New York. The following men will take the trip: Captain Pell, Ramsey, Newhall, Palne, Hicks, Irving, Willetts, Ford and Washburn.

YANK ROGERS ON TOP.

LOWELL, Jan. 10.—Yankee Rogers defeated Fritz Moni in a wrestling bout, winning two falls in 15m. 55s. and 12m. 20s. Rogers was 40 pounds lighter, but was by far the cleverer. Frank Gotch meets Hjalmar Lundin here January 21.

DARTMOUTH HERE MAY 7.

The annual dual track meet between Harvard and Dartmouth will be held in the Stadium May 9, the Saturday preceding the Yale meet, which also will be held at Cambridge this year.

SCROGGS LOST ON FOUL.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—Billy Weller, the local lightweight, won on a foul from Harry Scroggs of Baltimore in the eleventh round of what was to have been a fifteen-round bout at Maisonneuve.

Foxy Abe, by Meeting Neil, Joins New Association

ATTELL A LEMON-PICKER

BY TAD.

Are small men harder to beat than the big ones?

Abe Attell is one person who sincerely thinks so.

After his fight with Owen Moran he refused to fight the latter again, because the weight asked for was 122 pounds three hours before the fight. Attell is the champion featherweight of the world. The recognized featherweight limit is 122 pounds, now why should the champion insist that his opponent weigh 120? The rules state that any one weighing over 122 pounds is a lightweight.

Attell has fought Battling Nelson, Eddie Hanlon, Aurelio Herrera and Buddy Ryan, but they never made 120 pounds. Most of them fought at the lightweight limit, but Abe bothered not.

Abe fought Harry Baker a twenty-round fight in Los Angeles, and then when they met again forced Baker to weigh in with his shoes and gloves on. Maybe Baker was a tough one. He tried to make Fred the Weeks weigh in the same way, but the Colorado lad balked and weighed in stripped. Now that Attell refuses to give Moran a return battle at 122 pounds, he must think pretty well of the British lad.

He will gain little by fighting Frankie Neil. Eddie Hanlon beat Neil, so did Harry Baker, so did Jem Bowker, so did Moran, so did Attell himself. What is another battle going to prove?

Neil is looked upon as a ripe lemon now, and by picking him Attell is only following in the footsteps of the kind of lemon pickers of which Mr. Thomas Burns, of Canada, is a shining example.

Jem Bowker the Real Wonder

Jack Hare, the London featherweight, who boxed around here last July, has just arrived from London, where he saw Tommy Burns beat Moir, and also watched the great little fellow of London fight.

"I see you people think Moran a wonder, now that he beat, er, rather, boxed a draw with Attell, eh? Well, by George, if he is great Jem Bowker will be a revelation. I know Billy Nolan and Bat Nelson thought well of him when they saw him on the other side, and they were right. Nolan wanted to bring him across to fight Attell, but Bowker wouldn't come. He is without doubt the fastest man they ever saw on the other side. He beat Moran handily in a twenty-round bout, and for all I know can do the same to Attell.

"Yes, Driscoll beat him, but I think it was a frame-up. In fact, I heard from pretty good authority that it was. Bowker had him any time he wanted him, and it looked like a lucky blow that dropped him.

"Yes, Bowker will make Spike Robson look like a sick baby when they meet.

"Burns? Yes, I saw him, and I don't think he will appear at the National Club again. Lord Lonsdale and Charles Beresford were very angry at him for demanding that the money be put in the referee's hands before the fight started. He thought he was in a thieves' den, I presume. Oh, I think he's a clever fellow, but he lacks a good punch. Of course Moir was only a second-rater with these big Americans, but over there he was first-class. This man Roche will put up a fair fight. He beat Wilson, the man who knocked out Moir in two rounds, so you see he's a bit classy.

"We have crooked fighters over there the same as you have here. The real straight ones are here now. Summers, Moran and Welch are honest, but the others, bosh!

"Pat O'Keefe isn't the hardest man they ever sent across. I saw Pat yesterday and he informed me that he rather liked the carpet the night he met Willie Lewis here. If Pat had tried he might be in the ring yet, as he is known to be a glutton, as you call it, for punishment.

"Oh, yes, I'm in the game for the shekels, too. I'll be only too glad to box at 120 pounds. I beat Griff Jones here, and would like another try at some of your boys."

With that Mr. Hare folded his garments about him, turned around and, bowing, eased himself out into the cold.

Jawn Says He'll Fight Jack.

Phil Jawn O'Brien was up to see me in New York a few days ago.

Yes, same smiling Jawn, with the soft stuff.

Wore a pearl-gray lid, an ivory cane, a big chunk of ice in the tie, a checkered vest, long lavender overcoat and a smile that would have made Chauncey M. Depew look as though he had swallowed a persimmon.

"My nina bone; oh, I guess it's all right," piped the smiling Quaker as he tossed his cane around a la drum major.

"You see, I really did injure that member in my bout with Heveron. Mr. Fitzpatrick tells an untruth when he says I put a load of coal in the cellar next day and didn't feel the hurt until he talked of the Johnson match. Why, I'll fight Johnson six or ten or twenty rounds as soon as I get an offer. You know I wouldn't want to fight with one hand. He's a big fellow, and I imagine a bit rough, and I'll need all I have when we meet.

"I'm going to start a club myself in Phila. next month and want to get a good card for the opening up. It will be at Kensington, which is in North Philadelphia and ten minutes from the station. I feel that it will be a big success, and if I get the match I want I will start with a winner.

"Kelly. Very clever fellow. I imagine the weight was a bit too light for him. He won a decision over me once, but I was double crossed. I never made a yell about it, however, but let it go. There's no use of squaling over spilt milk. I looked for him to win from Papke, but as I say, he was probably frail that evening and hadn't all the strength he needed.

"Am I in shape now? Well, I'm boxing two or three days a week at home and have three fast little fellows to keep me right. I'm as good right now as I ever was. Why, the night I met Heveron I really surprised myself. I was as strong as a horse, and my! what a punch I had. Yes, Johnson and Fitzpatrick may yell their heads off about me jumping the match, but when we meet, take it from me there will be a different story."

Cheering and applause from office boys.

"Well, gentlemen, adieu. Some of the rents are overdue and I'll have to go over and throw a few tenants out. Good afternoon."

WATERBURY POLO TEAM HERE

The Boston polo team will get a chance to-night to even up for that Monday night defeat by Waterbury, as the Waterbury team comes here for the final game of the week.

The Waterbury club at present is playing fine polo, two of the injured players are back into the game and all are working well together.

Old polo fans will recognize three former New England League stars on the visiting quintet, Dan Daly, the well-known [illegible] rider, and better known polo player, is second rush on the Waterbury team. Tommy Holderness is another veteran polo player who is holding down the half-back position, and Dave Cusick, the goal tend, is also well known to followers of the game.

The Boston team will present the same line-up as on Wednesday evening. "Long John" Wiley is still bothered with a bruised hand but will continue to play.

OFFICERS FOR FRENCH BULLDOG CLUB

At the annual meeting of the French Bulldog Club of New England, the following officers, committees and judges were elected:

President, F. P. Purdy; vice-president, W. H. Ximines; secretary, Walter Burgess; treasurer, R. R. Gray. Executive Committee (in addition to the officers), J. E. Townsend, Robert McDonald, W. B. Purdy, A. M. Tyner. Judges, members, M. Greenwood, F. A. Minard, E. W. Bright, C. F. Townsend, C. E. Sullivan, F. A. Bearse, W. B. Purdy, G. H. Keyes, J. C. Sullivan, W. H. Ximines. Judges, non-members, James Mortimer, R. B. Hunt, W. C. Codman, Arnold Lawson, William J. Barkhardt.

HARRY HILLMAN IN TROUBLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—There were some further developments in the case of the athletes who were lately found to have transgressed teh A. A. U. rules. It was learned from the legislation committee of that association that Harry L. Hillman was suspended and will remain under the ban until he is reinstated.

This case seemingly has nothing to do with the Montreal trip; it is another violation nearer home. A couple of weeks ago Hillman ran an exhibition 440 yard race at the games of the Twenty-second Regiment and a gold watch was presented to him in return for the brush with Father Time. This watch was ready or Taylor, the colored Pennsylvania man, but he did not turn up and Hillman, to satisfy the crowd, offered to run the quarter.

This is contrary to the A. A. U. laws and Martow S. Weeks, chairman of the legislation committee, is responsible for the statement that Hillman suspended himself by accepting the watch.

JOE KELLEY WILL MEET PRESIDENT DOVEY TO SIGN A CONTRACT TOMORROW

Special to the Boston American.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10.—Manager Joe Kelley of the Boston National baseball team will leave here at midnight to-night for New York where he is to meet President Harry Pulliam of the National League and President Dovey of the Boston club.

All sides will be reinforced by attorneys and between them all Manager Kelley expects to sign a contract that will be mutually binding as well as mutually agreeable to both sides.

This business is supposed to be put through early on Saturday morning and if the present schedule is followed Manager Kelley and President Dovey will board the noon train at New York on Saturday for Boston. Kelley says that while he has received several letters from President Dovey, nothing of importance has been said or done. Real work will begin next week when he expects to send out contracts to all of the players whom Boston claims for next year's teams.

CONNIE MACK HAS MADE ONE TRADE IN SEVEN YEARS

Connie Mack holds one unique record in the fact that during his seven years' management of the Athletics he has succeeded in making only one trade. This took place last year, when he gave Third Baseman Knight for Jimmy Collins.

This singular circumstance shows how Mack's judgment is respected by other managers, for his isolation in the matter of trades is by no means voluntary.

Mack has often proposed deals to other managers, but in every instance his offer has been turned down. The other managers can't conceive how the sagacious Mack would make a trade in which he did not get a great deal the better of it.

In several instances Mack made a proposition that would have incontestably strengthened another club, but still this deal was declined. He offered three good men to St. Louis for Pitcher Harry Howell.

One of the Athletic players who was a part of the proposed deal was in a slump at the time, and it was believed that his days of usefulness were at an end. But this player immediately recovered his grip, and now Mack wouldn't make a straight trade of the player for Howell, which is no reflection on the Browns' star boxman.

Jimmy McAleer missed a chance to strengthen his team merely because of the fear all managers have of swapping with Mack.

While he is cut off from trading in his own league, Mack has been successful enough in obtaining collegians, minor leaguers and big league castoffs to win two pennants in seven years, and to be a championship contender in every year.

* * *

The turndown at the hands of the National Baseball Commission received by American Association, in reference to proposed location of a new club in Chicago, coupled with several rulings that have been relished by the minor league, stirred the latter up to a high pitch of excitement. The minor league men, as a result, have been holding informal conferences in different parts of the country with the idea of hitting upon a plan which the "high handed methods" of the big fellows may be resented. Some of the minor league fellows believe that they [illegible] paddle their own canoe, and are in favor of cutting away from the major leagues, but in such an event there would be no money coming from the majors for drafted or purchased players, which would be a serious loss for the small leagues. In the event of a war, the majors would go in intact, at the same time grabbing minor league players whenever they were needed without the expenditure of a dollar, as the minors would be unable to offer sufficient inducements to players in the big leagues to jump their engagements. Conservative baseball men say that if the minor league people do not lose their heads they will be satisfied to let well enough alone.

* * *

Willie Keeler was stung when the Hamburg Trust Company closed its doors. However, Willie will struggle along on an income from a dozen or more Brooklyn apartment houses until the baseball season opens.

* * *

"Jiggs" Donohue has entered a five-man team composed entirely of ball players, in the American Bowling Congress tournament in Cincinnati next month. Al Selbach, who recently won the individual championship of Ohio, will pilot a team from Columbus and John Ganzel is a probable competitor. A special prize may be hung up for baseball entries.

* * *

The Southern League is the only organization to make a yell of "hard times." The Southern is considering a reduction of 10 per cent. in salaries and the players are getting ready to howl.

* * *

It is said that Whitey Alperman, who broke his leg last Fall, is still limping so that he will be of little value to the Dodgers for the first few weeks of the season. It will be hard lines for Pat Donovan if this sterling player has to do bench duty.

* * *

Philadelphia is still discussing that seventeen-inning game while the rest of us are winning 1908 pennants. Quite in keeping with Philly's reputation.

* * *

Billy Gilbert will have a formidable rival for the second base job in St. Louis in Charles, the Williamsport graduate. Gilbert will go to Hot Springs early next month to prepare for what promises to be a good season for him.

BAY STATE A. A. DIRECTORS HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

By J. C. KERRISON.

The initial meeting of the recently elected board of directors of the Bay State Automobile Association, held yesterday afternoon, extended over a long period, during which much of importance was considered. All members save Vice-President Harlan W. Whipple, who has gone to California, were present and important matters were determined. The board elected these chairmen of committees: House Committee, George W. McNear; Entertainment, Dr. Julius F. Hovestadt; Racing, Harry W. Knights; Touring, John C. Kerrison. The several chairmen were authorized to appoint the members of their several committees. The chairman of the Touring Committee has invited these gentlemen to comprise that important committee: Col. Horace G. Kemp, Alfred N. Robbins and E. A. Gilmore. The first two named were members of last year's committee, while Mr. Gilmore was the chairman of the committee two years ago, so that it is readily seen that each member is experienced in the particular work of this committee.

Chicago has followed the lead of New York, and set the date for her next automobile show in February, 1909. The exact date was not determined upon but Chicago show will follow two weeks after the New York exhibit and Boston will come in March, as heretofore.

An interesting automobile fuel test to determine the merits of benzol for motor car use is being made by C. H. Tangeman and Harry Fosdick of the Hol-Tan Company of New York. They are on a run from New York to Philadelphia and return using benzol as fuel for the entire trip. Joe Tracy, the Vanderbilt Cup race driver, has charge of the car, the return trip from Philadelphia to be made on Saturday.

Joe Tracy has been conducting experiments with benzol for automobile use in conjunction with Mr. Tangeman and Mr. Fosdick for several weeks. The prime object is to determine the commercial and motive value of benzol as an available substitute for gasoline, in view of the increasing cost of the latter fuel.

Benzol is a water white liquid, which is produced as a by-product in the manufacture of coal gas. Although it does not gasify quite as readily as gasoline, it can be used in an ordinary gasoline motor with very slight changes in the carburetor. As a motor develops more power when running on benzol than it does when running on gasoline, less benzol is likely to be needed by a car in covering a given distance than gasoline. The area of the "nozzle" aperture, therefore, should be less than that required for gasoline. On account of benzol having a higher specific gravity than gasoline, it is also necessary to readjust the float and the needle valve after using gasoline.

If the managers of the Briarcliff Cup race for stock cars open their lists and accept the entry of Mrs. Joan Cuneo, they will be doing only what the promoters of European races did several years ago. This country has come gradually to adopt European standards and methods in matters of motoring, and perhaps the time is now ripe for the admission of women as competitors in open events.

Mrs. Cuneo has proven herself worthy of competing with men experts by her driving in several events, her most recent achievement being the piloting of her Rainier car safely through the Glidden tour of last July. She has now bought a 45-50 Rainier and says that she proposes to enter every event open to her. The interesting feature about Mrs. Cuneo is that her racing propensity is a matter of pure enthusiasm. Her husband is a man of means and she has no business relations whatever with any manufacturer. She is a motorist and a home body, despite her motoring hobby, and what she craves is not notoriety but simply the opportunity to enjoy the exercise of her prowess as a driver.

Composer and His Wife Saved From Starvation

Composer Haile and His Wife Who Were Starving

In New York city where millions of dollars are lavished on gayety, a great musician has just been found starving to death. He had saved his wife and child from total want by giving them the last few dollars he had saved.

The man is Eugene Haile. He was taken from the lower part of the city to the Flower Hospital, where the physicians found he was nearly dying for want of food. Careful nursing has restored him some of his lost strength. In time he will fully recover.

And now comes the belated recognition. The man's story of an ineffectual fight against poverty was published and a millionaire, Heinrich Meyn, also a German, has come to the man's aid, and will furnish him funds so that the musician, his plucky wife and child may have plenty while the man is composing his grand opera.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

International President Daniel J. Tobin of Cambridge has invited the executive boards of the teamsters of Boston to attend a meeting to-night at No. 15 [illegible] street for the purpose of discussing the matter of the Boston Joint Council.

The Teamsters' Joint Council of Boston is composed of representatives of the teamsters locals in Boston, and the General Executive Board in Indianapolis has ruled that all Boston teamsters affiliated with the International must belong to this council.

According to members of the local organizations the constitution of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, as adopted at the convention held in Boston August 5, 1907, states that no professional man or practical practitioner, such as lawyer, veterinary surgeon or man of similar occupation, shall be eligible to membership in the Teamsters' International.

Based on this understanding of the constitution, and objecting to the present membership of the Boston Joint Council, some of the locals have either withdrawn from or refused to affiliate with the present council; in fact, it was proposed to form an independent council conforming strictly to the constitution, and correspondence was held with the national officers on the matter of the present formation of the council.

Friends and members of Bricklayers No. 3 tendered a complimentary banquet to the delegates to the national convention which will be held in Detroit, Monday, Jan. 13, before they left last night. President John T. Walsh of the State conference was presented with a gold chain and charm in recognition of services rendered to the union for the past twenty years.

The delegates, George T. Thornton, international vice president; John T. Walsh, president of the Massachusetts State Conference; D. J. Sullivan, president of No. 3, and member of the Boston Board of Appeals, as representative of the Boston Central Labor Union; J. F. Driscoll, former business agent, and L. J. Cannon will carry a full line of literature and "boomer" buttons to distribute among the delegates of the convention, as No. 3 is out to have the 1910 convention held in Boston.

NOTES

At the meeting last night of Elevator Constructors No. 4, Business Agent J. C. MacDonald reported that he had been successful in having an agreement signed by the Worcester Plunger Elevator Co. of Worcester, with whom he has been in conference for some time. Business was reported as fairly good, with most of the men working and prospects for the Winter were unusually good.

Harry Quinn was elected delegate last night by Machinists No. 264 to the quarterly meeting of Division No. 19 of New England. Division 19 meets next Sunday at No. 724 Washington street.

Secretary-Treasurer John J. Kennedy of the New England District Council of Sheet Metal Workers sent out notices to call for the quarterly convention to be held January 26 in [illegible].

To-night in Paine Memorial Hall President-elect Tracey and the other officers of Cigarmakers No. 97 will be installed. The label plan for 1908 will be discussed.

Car Workers Allston Lodge No. 307 will install officers to-night in Parson Hall, Brighton. William G. Johnson has been re-elected president for the third year.

STORM BURIES MANY VILLAGES

KIEL, Germany, Jan. 10.—The terrible east storm which has been raging for nearly three days continues to sweep the waters of the Baltic far inland. The lowlying plains in the vicinity of Lubeck are now in many places flooded seven feet deep, and dozens of villages are inundated.

It is feared there has been considerable loss of life. The destruction of property has been enormous, and there are reports of several marine disasters.

'FUTURE' DEALS NOT GAMBLING

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 10.—The Supreme Court has decided, in effect that dealings in futures is not gambling within the meaning of the law. The decision was in the case of Ferdinand A. Hallett, a member of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, against Peter N. Aggergaard of Yankton County, S. D.

More About Criticism—Dramatic, Etc.

You Need Not Be an Author to Criticise Well—The Bludgeon Is a Stupid Weapon

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

This newspaper has expressed its opinion as to USEFUL criticism—theatrical, literary and other.

It is our notion that the critic who spends his time "showing off" at the expense of hard-working actors, singers, playwrights or writers is rather a foolish person and a nuisance.

There is nothing easier or cheaper than to display inferior wit at the expense of men and women doing their best. The gentleman who saunters in after dinner to think over flippant things to say about others is a blot on the landscape, and this newspaper doesn't want any of him.

We want and we purpose to print only CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM. We believe that JUDICIOUS PRAISE is worth any amount of haphazard blame and buffoon-like sarcasm.

We believe also that it takes real ability, intelligence and knowledge to distinguish what is good and praise it properly. It doesn't take any ability at all to indulge in clownish humor at the expense of others.

At the same time, we do not accept one view of criticism that is preached very often. This view is expressed in a letter from a playwright who says:

"Bernard Shaw spoke the truth when he said: 'Those who can, do; those who cannot, teach.'

"'I believe in criticism,' observed A. W. Pinero. 'If there's any man in England who knows more about writing plays than I do, I want him to tell me about it; but if there's any man in England who knows more about writing plays than I do, he is writing plays and not dramatic criticism.'"

Bernard Shaw didn't speak the truth, and Pinero, a good playwright, was simply talking nonsense.

"Those who can, do; those who cannot, teach," sounds very nice, but there is nothing in it.

The greatest work in the world is teaching. To teach intelligently means to fructify many brains, to give to the world MANY DOERS. And the teacher to whom the world owes MANY men of ability, many well-trained minds, is certainly more important than any individual one of those minds.

Mr. Pinero's idea that any man who knows more about plays than he "is WRITING PLAYS and not dramatic criticism" is not a brilliant idea.

A man may be utterly unable to write a play, and yet better able than any playwright in the world TO CRITICISE A PLAY.

Mr. Pinero, for instance, CANNOT ACT. But we venture to say that he spends a good deal of his time criticising and offering suggestions to the actors and actresses that are producing his plays. He doesn't hesitate to tell a woman or a man HOW to act, although he couldn't possibly do what he tells the actor to do.

Gilbert, of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan partnership, was a fat, heavy man, not at all amusing outside of his writings. But he knew how to tell his troupe at the Savoy Theatre things about acting that they didn't know. He was able to criticise them intelligently and CONSTRUCTIVELY. He knew how to make better actors and actresses out of them. He knew how to praise them at the right time. He would have looked utterly ridiculous as an actor himself, but he was a great critic of acting.

And in the same way many a man utterly incapable, perhaps, of writing a great play might be very able as a critic of such a play.

Moliere—considerably greater than Mr. Pinero and Mr. Bernard Shaw rolled into one—was aware of the fact that the mind which cannot, perhaps, create CAN criticise or appreciate. It is well known that he read his comedies to his cook—a lady not at all intelligent, but rather hard to please. If he didn't succeed in pleasing her the first time, he kept on trying until he did succeed. She was a good critic, although she couldn't write Moliere's comedies any more than Mr. Pinero or Mr. Shaw could write them.

To say that a man cannot justly, properly, intelligently and usefully criticise that which he himself could not do is nonsense. You might just as well say that no scholar could write an intelligent history of the life of Alexander the Great unless that same scholar were able to ride and tame Bucephalus.

Criticism is a work very important and useful, a work entirely by itself and entirely apart from the ability of the critic to produce that which he criticises. The stand which the BOSTON AMERICAN takes is this:

All work done by men should be useful work, CRITICISM NOT EXCEPTED.

The best work that a man can do is to encourage and stimulate and help another. The criticism that encourages and stimulates good work is GOOD criticism.

The criticism which simply discourages men and women, which enables the critic to show what a wonderfully clever and brilliant person he is, is impertinent and trashy. And this newspaper doesn't want any of it.

A good critic is like a mother.

A bad critic is the worst kind of a stepmother.

A Triumph of Taste

By C. B. Quincy

At a recent coming out party 500 butterflies were released in the ballroom; at another the ballroom was transformed into a wood, and the guests hooked goldfish from ponds and threw them back.

DEAR MADGE—A great success! beat Susan's by a mile;
I guess my little party will hold 'em for a while.
Why, we blew five hundred thousand, but Pop's a sport, you bet;
If I'd wanted more spondulix he'd be drawing money yet.
The ballroom was a jungle; it was just too dear and cute,
With palm trees brought from Africa and hung with flowers and fruit.
I'd a lot of huge gorillas let loose up in the tops,
And now and then we'd shoot one to see its funny flops.
They're sweetly ugly creatures. We had parrots in the trees—
Corking birds, those parrots; cuss in any tongue they please.
You'd have laughed yourself to death, Madge, when Connie looked around
And said, "That's Algy cussin'; I recognize the sound."
In the middle was a lake with some hippopota*muses*,
Delicious pudgy fellows, and most "amoosin' cusses."
The jolly alligators, with their long old toothy mugs,
Made careless Willy Poppleton believe that he'd gone bugs.
We chucked in Briggs, the butler; you should have heard him yelp.
But Popper pulled him out again, and said, "Don't spoil the help."
The Miggses fished for goldfish in dirty little pails;
I saw 'em and I raised 'em—we fished for sharks and whales.
Success? You betcher, Madgy; we kept it up all night.
You know this kid's the girlie to do the thing up right.
Why, even Reggie Coldcash, when he simply had to go,
Said, "Floss, old girl, you surely put up a snortin' show"—
He's such a critic, too; d'ye wonder I feel bossy
At having [illegible] ur bunch the pace? Yours ever FLOSSIE.

She Declares the Recent Wave of Prohibition Is a Mighty Sign That the World Is Improving

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1908, by American Journal-Examiner

"I AM getting worried about myself," a man remarked to a friend. "I feel stale and really ill to-day. I was at a club dinner last night and I did not eat, drink or smoke any more than usual, but I am all upset. I can't stand even what I could a few months ago. If it's come to a place where a fellow can't have any fun, I think he had better die."

Like thousands of men, this man was in quest of happiness through his stomach. He was rich and could pay for anything he desired, and he saw no reason why he should not gratify his appetite.

He was worried about himself. Isn't it strange that men who know enough to add a column of figures or to get up and go to bed should not know better than to search for happiness in such a fashion!

Frightened out of their wits, some of these men who live only to eat are induced to try fasting. To try the right thing never occurs to them or to their physicians. From stuffing to starving may be a benign step in some extreme cases, but there must be something besides this radical measure to insure a real cure. This something comes from within, and without its exercise happiness is impossible. It is variously named. Some people call it common sense, others temperance and the simple life. Still others call it God. It is really a constant awareness of the presence of the Infinite where "all the ways are ways of pleasantness and all the paths are peace."—Eleanor Kirk, in "The Balance."

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

A GREAT wave of "Prohibition" and "No License" has been sweeping over the Western States. May it sweep over the whole world and either drown or reform all the men and women who are destroying their own lives and the happiness of those associated with them by their intemperance.

All the monopolies, trusts and political injustice of the world combined have never produced the poverty and misery which are continually produced by the habit of drink.

Cases in Point

A GOOD woman and wife and mother has suffered for forty years from the incessant drunkenness of her husband and sons. Among nine children, four only have been temperate, or kind. The miserable husband lives on and on, seemingly preserved, like a cucumber, by his pickling in alcohol.

Another woman buried her noble and temperate son a year ago, while her drunken husband still sits like a fiend incarnate in the home, pouring down his weekly earnings, and refusing alike to reform or to seek another abode.

Both of these women are obliged to work in order to maintain homes, and the question arises, why they consider it incumbent upon them to remain under the same roof with these wilfully drunken men, who have over and over violated the vows they made to "love, protect and cherish" the women they chose as wives.

No man who desires to reform need be addicted to the habit of drink to-day.

Every good physician knows simple and inexpensive remedies which will take away the craving, the physical craving for drink, and at the same time help the man to build up and fortify his constitution.

But unless the man desires to reform, and has the mental and moral nature awakened to that purpose, the physical remedy does little good.

Neither of the men referred to above desires any higher pleasure or satisfaction in life than that obtained from drinking. Their natures are incapable of any feelings of remorse or shame; the sorrow of their wives and children makes no impression upon their minds, hardened and deadened to the finer emotions.

It is hopeless to expect any "cure" for such men. There are thousands of them in the land; and they should be incarcerated by force in institutions and treated for alcoholism at the expense of the State which allows op saloons on every corner, then put parole, and if they return to th drunken habits they should be fo bidden, on penalty of imprisonment f life, from returning to their homes, a their wives should be legally divorc

The weak women who continue live with such men and to bear th children ought to come under the ca of the "Gerry Society." It should b come a part of the duty of all phil thropists and of the State to find ployment for the wives and families such men.

Laws Needed

EVERY State ought to pass a making habitual drunkenn cause for divorce without any le proceedings beyond the testimony reliable witnesses who can prove accusation.

The world is not as drunken as used to be. It is slowly, but sur coming to realize the degradation wh lies in confirmed habits of dissipatio

But there is misery unspeakable st existing all about us, caused by th thirst of men and women for spirituou drink.

No reforms can be established unt the minds of people are lifted abov this need of stimulants, but the clo ing of saloons, and the prohibition the manufacture of alcoholic drin will help to keep the working man fr wasting his wages in the near saloon, and from reeling home drun and abusing his unhappy family.

It is, however, in the education o the growing generation that the re reform lies. Our schools are doi much to bring about a true unde standing in the minds of children this important subject.

Twenty-five years from now drunke ness will be less frequent; fifty year still less frequent, and the great de crease in the use of alcoholic drinks the last hundred years will be immea urably greater in the next hundred.

In the days of Washington, "gentle men" and "kings" were all proud o the frequent debauch, but to-day onl men of poor mental and low mor calibre boast of being drunk. Re spectable men are ashamed of it.

So the world is improving in this a in all other things. But so much need less misery still exists, caused by drin that all right minded and public spir ited men and women ought to uni their efforts to help lessen the evil any and every way possible.
